There's no shortage of gas, federal official claims

By MICHAEL MORAN
Ottaway News Service

WASHINGTON D.C. — Gasoline production in the United States is at a record high, and one Department of the Interior official told Ottaway News Service shortages are due more to fluctuations in distribution than to actual shortages in gasoline supplies.

"The gasoline shortage is more economic than phsyical," said Herbert Ashman, industrial specialist of the Department of the Interior, during a telephone interview Thursday from his office in Washington.

Ashman said gasoline stocks east of the Rockies total 183 million barrels, more than enough to meet the nation's needs. At this time last year the supply was 190 million barrels, he said.

"U.S. production of gasoline in the last three weeks has been at a record high of over seven million barrels a day," Ashman said. "The stocks are not diminishing as rapidly as at this time last year. The situation seems to be stabilizing."

Major oil companies and other energy sources began warning of shortages in February 1973. Company spokesmen said this week that forecasts could not have been made earlier than that because "the energy distribtion system is so complex."

But Ashman said, "the (production and stockpile) statistics show no shortage, except in surplus." Any shortages caused by the lack of surplus and fluctuations in distrubution, he said, have caused "unnecessary hysteria."

He said examples of hysteria were Sears, Roebuck and Co. reporting a large increase in sales of five gallon gas cans and Midwest farmers replacing their 500-gallon fuel tanks with 2000-gallon tanks.

Spokesmen for the Gulf Oil Co. and Exxon Co. said that the lack of refining capability and crude oil shortages have made available supplies "tight," in view of a seven per cent increase in demand.

A Sun Oil Co. spokesman noted his company's problem is obtaining enough crude oil. Extra refining capabilities would not help Sun Oil at this time, he said.

The Sun spokesman this week predicted spot shortages where Sunoco stations would run out of fuel but would receive refills "soon."

Exxon Senior Vice President W.T. Slick Jr., told the Cost of Living Council this week that his company has concluded that shortages this summer may be scattered.

All gasoline company spokesmen pointed out that this is the first time since World War II that crude oil surpluses have not existed.

When these surpluses existed in the quantities usual in the 1960s he said, oil refiners sold their surplus in the "spot market" to discount gasoline outlets. When the surpluses began running out in the past year the discounters were hit with shortages and their customers switched to buying from major oil company service stations, he explained.

The switch upset the balance in the gasoline distribution system too quickly for companies to cope with, Ashman said. He predicted that the situation will improve even more when a new gasoline distribution balance is reached in a few months.

The Washington assessment of gasoline supplies contrasted with a March 9, 1973 statement by Robert E. Nipp of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, who told United Press International that shortages develop when stocks drop below 175 million barrels.

Ashman said Thursday afternoon that the 175 million barrel level is "meaningless." He said, the gasoline distribution system in the U.S. is too large and complex to pick any figure as a point where shortages will develop.

"We've never had a shortage before," he said, although stockpiles have dropped in previous years to around 175 million barrels during the third fiscal quarter. In fact, he added, in an emergency the nation's gasoline needs could likely be met by as little as 100 million barrels in stored gasoline. Such a drop he said would require "emergency procedures" such as using water to flush petroleum products through pipelines.

Better fill your gas tank today

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE

HARRISBURG — Weekend gasoline supplies are adequate in northeastern Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania AAA federation reported Friday.

But if you plan on traveling Sunday, you'd better fill up the gas tank today. Many stations may be closed Sunday.

"There are no limits to the amount of gasoline being sold to each customer in this portion of Pennsylvania with the exception of just one station in the city of Pottsville," the Triple A said. "Throughout the Poconos and north, supplies are reported adequate."

The federation issued the report based on checks its member clubs made with 176 randomly selected gas stations across the state.

The report showed indications of a worsening gasoline shortage:

— 24 per cent of the stations contacted are limiting their hours of operation. Most are staying closed on Sundays.

— Long distance travelers may meet problems if they plan on filling-up at stations along the Pennsylvania, Turnpike. "Eight of 11 Gulf stations report no supplies of low-lead gasoline. ARCO is operating normally. Exxon is allowing a maximum of 12 gallons per customer, the report said.

— A full eight per cent of the stations told the Triple A they have hiked gas prices, some by two cents a gallon.

The report also said most stations in the northern part of the state have adequate fuel supplies. The report did not, however, make specific references to stations along Interstate Route 80.

Mayor protests traffic ban

LOS ANGELES — A total ban on traffic and gas rationing in Los Angeles would be economically devastating, Mayor-elect Tom Bradley said Friday. Bradley said he will go to Washington next week to protest the stringent air pollution control program which the Environmental Protection Agency has proposed for his city.

Brezhnev leaves for summit

MOSCOW — Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev leaves today for his second summit meeting with President Nixon. Brezhnev, who makes his first visit to America, will rest at Camp David on his arrival before Nixon officially receives him Monday morning. Brezhnev said Friday he will ignore Watergate. "I am not going to the United States to bargain with President Nixon. We are going to have negotiations . . ." he said.

Oil pipeline needed

WASHINGTON—The United States cannot afford to abandon the trans-Alaska pipeline in favor of a Canadian route. Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said Friday. "We have never been able to make a concrete case that would overcome the risk of abandoning the Alaska project for a Canadian project," he said. Morton rejected a proposal for a six-month study of a trans-Canadian pipeline before a go-ahead is given for the proposed $3.5 billion Alaskan project.

New Yorkers get involved

NEW YORK — In what a disbelieving New York city patrolman described as "I've never seen anything like it," a group of passers-by on Broadway in uptown Manhatten chased three hoodlums who had snatched the purse of a 19-year-old girl. The hoodlums dashed for a taxi, but the crowd of people quickly surrounded the cab, shouting and shaking their fists, and refusing to let it drive away until police arrived.

Nixon urges U.S. to keep faith in political system

PEKIN, Ill. (UPI) — President Nixon urged a nation numbed by the spreading Watergate scandal Friday to shun cynicism about politics and politicians and to keep faith in basic soundness of the American political system.

In his second public speech in a week after seldom appearing in public since mid-February, the President attended dedication ceremonies for a new congressional research center named in memory of former Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen.

The President seemed to get a boost in spirit from the campaign-style reception he received from an estimated crowd of 30,000 persons in this downstate Illinois town where Dirksen was born and is buried.

Most of the crowd appeared to be friendly, and Nixon was greeted with cries of "You're the greatest" and "We love you, Mr. President."

But the scandal did not evaporate completely on this hot, humid and occasionally drizzly day. A teen-ager along the President's motorcade route from Peoria waved a sign reading, "Nixon can't even hide in Pekin from Watergate." And shortly before the President's arrival in the town square where the ceremony took place, two unidentified persons raised a sign saying, "Impeach Nixon."

"In this profession —as in any —there is much that could be improved. But there is much to admire. It would be a tragedy if we allowed the mistakes of a few to obscure the virtues of most who are in the profession of politics —or if we let our disappointment with some aspects of the system turn into despair with the system as a whole."

Nixon clearly appeared to be referring to the political espionage scandal that has engulfed his administration, but he did not mention Watergate directly.

The President shared the speaker's rostrum with the vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., who is married to Dirksen's daughter, Joy. In brief remarks, Baker also made no mention of Watergate, stressing instead his love for the Illinois farm country.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who has publicly clashed with Nixon over Watergate, conferred with the President on the flight from Washington to Illinois. Percy said they had settled their differences.

Following his speech, Nixon flew to Key Biscayne, Fla., to spend the weekend preparing for his weeklong summit meeting beginning Monday with Soviet Communist chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"Based on the attitude of Mr. Brezhnev and on my attitude ... you can have great hope that as a result of this meeting, the two great superpowers will make progress toward lessening the danger of war and also make progress toward reducing the burden of nuclear arms that weights us all down," Nixon said.

Farm subsidies limited by House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Thursday passed and sent to the Senate a multibillion-dollar appropriation bill that includes a $20,000 ceiling that any one grower of cotton, wheat or feed grains can receive as a farm subsidy.

The anti-subsidy language, the toughest yet approved by either the House or Senate, was written into a $9.4 billion appropriations measure for agriculture, environmental and consumer protection programs in the 1974 fiscal year that starts July 1.

The key vote was 195-157 to approve an amendment by Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., that not only sets the $20,000 per person ceiling but prohibits leasing of cotton acreage which Findley said is major loophole in the present law.

The tight payment ceiling coupled with loophole-closing language could cut government farm spending substantially.

A Senate calculation showed that if the $20,000 limit had been in effect for 1972 crops and fully enforced, payments would have been cut by $165.5 million, including reductions of $138 million for cotton growers, nearly $16 million for feed grains and almost $11.5 million for wheat producers.

The potential dollar impact in 1974 could vary because Congress is currently considering a new subsidy system under which per-bushel and per-bale payments could decline from recent levels if open-market prices remain high. If these payments rates decline,(there would be fewer over-$20,000 farmers to be affected by a ceiling.

EPA sets strict clean air plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Friday approved a clean air plan for New York City involving cutbacks on cruising cabs and downtown parking, and it proposed one for Los Angeles that could force all cars off the streets there by 1977.

It also proposed a freeze on the gasoline supply for Northern New Jersey that could result in a 60 per cent reduction in driving in that area.

Acting under a federal law aimed at significantly cleaning up the air around major cities by 1975, the agency announced its decision on plans submitted by 23 states to meet that goal. It fully approved only those for New York and Alabama, but said it expected to approve later this month those for Kansas, Missouri and Louisiana. It either partially or completely rejected all the rest.

Acting EPA Administrator Robert W. Fri said:

"The plan I am proposing today for Los Angeles could result in banning all automobiles from the streets there by 1977, as well as 60 per cent of the diesel-powered vehicles. The Northern New Jersey plan announced today may require over 60 per cent reduction in driving in that area."

The complete ban on cars in Los Angeles is a possibility, Fri added, because the air there is already so bad that even the traffic reduction measures may not help it. And the EPA proposal that no gas could be sold in 1975 if it violated the clean air law would in effect mean that no gas would be available.

In addition to Los Angeles, the EPA submitted its own proposals for some of those which it rejected —17 urban areas in Indiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas. The other states will be covered by later EPA proposals.

The plan approved for New York City included restrictions on taxi cruising in portions of Midtown Manhattan, and thrice-yearly exhaust inspections for cabs; tolls on all East River and Harlem River bridges to encourage people to use car pools and mass transit; an end to on-street parking in Manhattan and reductions in off-street parking; restrictions on daytime deliveries to stores, factories and businesses; and stores and offices will be asked to stagger their working hours to lessen rush hour crushes.

The Los Angeles proposal was a re-submission with revisions of an earlier plan the EPA had offered under a court order. The state of California as such did not submit a plan.

The plan, covering the five-county Southern California area, proposes a "zero growth" in the supply of gasoline. After July 1, 1974, gasoline sales would be limited to the amount sold in 1972-73. As of May 1, 1975, gasoline sales would be limited.

In addition, bus-carpool lanes would be established by Dec. 1, 1973.

State air pollution solution rejected

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Friday turned down Pennsylvania's overall plan for reducing air pollution caused by vehicular traffic in its two largest cities, calling for rigid transportation controls in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

EPA Administrator Robert Fri rejected the state's plan because of "deficiencies" that would not permit it to meet federal clean air standards. At the same time, the EPA extended the deadline for complying with the standards from 1975 to May 31, 1976.

"The Clean Air Act mandates that we meet standards but we do it as reasonably as possible," Fri said, "I believe people will do what is needed to seek the benefits we seek."

No parking

Among stringent measures suggested by the agency were no on-street parking in central business districts after January 1974 with up to $100 fines for violators, implementation of bus and car-pool lanes by December 1974, installations of improved intake manifolds on all cars by January 1976 and limitations on numbers of autos permitted in center cities by March 1975.

The EPA proposals are subject to public hearings scheduled for July 15, while the Commonwealth was ordered to submit a new big city pollution control plan by Aug. 15 of this year.

The agency gave tacit approval to that portion of the state plan calling for reductions in carbon monoxide and hydrocarbon emissions by 55 per cent or more in the two cities.

Many businesses roll back scheduled price increases

By United Press International

President Nixon's 60-day price freeze has stopped a number of increases scheduled to go into effect Friday and rolled back some hikes announced earlier.

The freeze so far has affected businesses from steel making to newspaper publishing, with firms announcing that planned price hikes either had been rescinded or would not go into effect during the freeze.

Other major corporations, following President Nixon's latest effort to stop the growing momentum of inflation, said they were studying the situation. Several were expected to roll back prices or rescind scheduled increases.

In the auto industry, American Motors said Friday its scheduled price increase averaging $59 per car will not be applied during the freeze.

Among other auto makers, however, the freeze was expected to have little effect, since it expires before the 1974 models are introduced in mid-September.

General Motors and Ford earlier promised no price hikes on 1973 models until the new cars are introduced in September. Chrysler already has increased prices on its 1973 models.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel producer, and Bethlehem Steel, said Thursday that the freeze announced by the President Wednesday night was forcing them to postpone price hikes set to go on some of their products Friday.

U.S. Steel announced May 15 it was raising prices by $8 to $12 per ton on sheet steel products used primarily in the auto, home appliance and construction industries, and the other major steel makers quickly fell into line.

Also rescinding scheduled increases were Jones & Laughlin, Armco, Kaiser, Wheeling Pittsburgh, Republic, National Steel and Inland Steel.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Friday announced in Akron, Ohio, it was rescinding two price increases —a May 28 announced hike in the prices of tires and tubes for motorcycles, farm and other earth moving equipment and a June 8 increase in tire prices for cars and trucks.

In Midland, Mich., a Dow Chemical Co. spokesman said Friday the company is "withholding" price increases partially implemented last month.

The Pasco Marketing Co., gasoline supplier for Sinclair stations in 14 western states, has rolled back a one cent a gallon increase announced earlier this week. Ashland Oil Co Thursday rescinded a cent a gallon increased announced last Saturday.

Diet drugs ordered restricted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six habit-forming diet drugs, which have been used as a substitute for amphetamines, were listed as controlled substances Friday by the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD).

Under the new restrictions, doctors who sell these drugs directly to their patients must register the sales with the BNDD and physicians prescribing the pills must limit refills to five times in six months.

The drugs also must now carry special BNDD numbers to aid in speedy tracing of their source and distribution.

All six drugs have come into vogue since amphetamines were placed on the controlled substances list almost two years ago because of widespread illegal use. The BNDD said the six drugs contain what are known as "lime amphetamines," which can be habit-forming.

"These are being prescribed to take the place of amphetamines and may be abused in much the same manner," a spokesman said.

BNDD officials said manufacturers of four of the drugs agreed voluntarily to abide by the new rules. They are Upjohn Co., manufacturer of Didlex; U.S. Vitamin Phamaceutical Corp., maker of Voranil; A. H. Robbins Co., maker of Podamin; and Ayerest, maker of Plegine.

Compliance is still pending, the BNDD said, by the Warner Chillcott Division of the Warner-Lambert Co., which manufactures Pre-State, and by about 25 other firms which produce an appetite suppressant called phendimetrazime under a variety of brand names including "Teen Cats" and "Trimtabs."

Watergate probe shifts to cover up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The focus of the Senate Watergate investigation shifted Friday from the bugging and the obscure men who did it to the White House and the powerful presidential aides who allegedly tried to cover it up.

The chief targets, sources close to the inquiry told UPI, now are H. R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff until six weeks ago, and John W. Dean III, fired as White House counsel the same day that Haldeman stepped down.

Both men were prominently mentioned in the sworn testimony Thursday by the No. 2 man in the 1972 Nixon campaign, Jeb Stuart Magruder —Dean as one of the architects of both the bugging and the cover-up and Haldeman as at least a passive participant in both plots.

Attorneys for Haldeman and Dean had no immediate comment.

Dean is to be the next witness when the nationally televised Senate hearings resume Tuesday. He is expected to confirm much of Magruder's story of high-level intrigue —involving not only himself and Magruder, but also such men as Haldeman, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and ex-presidential assistant John D. Ehrlichman.

There have also been conflicting reports that Dean can implicate the President himself, at least in the cover-up of the scandal. Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman have all denied any involvement.

"At this stage of the game we've built from the Gemstone (political espionage) file and the Watergate break-in to the question of ultimate responsibility," one source said.

"When we bring Dean on, the question of course is going to be the President and Haldeman and Ehrlichman."

Ex-congressman given jail term

NEWARK, N.J.(UPI)-A federal court judge sentenced Cornelius E. Gallagher, 14-year former congressman, war hero and a man once considered for vice president, to a two-year prison term and maximum $10,000 fine Friday for income tax evasion.

U.S. District Court Judge Leonard I. Garth, whom Gallagher once tried to remove from the case, imposed the sentence following a 76-minute appeal for leniency by the Bayonne Democrat.

"It grieves me to sentence you as any man," Garth said, as the 53-year-old silver-haired Gallagher sat beside his attorney and not far from his wife and two daughters. "But someone who has standing in society must, like Caeser's wife, set an example.

"Society has an interest to be borne home forcefully, yet compassionately."

Garth also fined the defendant $500 for contempt in filing a document in open court after the jurist had ordered materials in the case sealed.

He doubled Gallagher's bail to $50,000 personal recognizance bond and ordered him to surrender to the U.S. marshal at 9:30 a.m. Monday, despite objections from U.S. Attorney Herbert J. Stern, who sought to have the defendant taken into custody immediately.

Freeze just holding action

BY JAMES P. GANNON
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's sudden summertime freeze of prices will cool inflation temporarily and take some political heat off the White House. But it threatens to thaw into an autumn of economic discontent.

In his first crucial policy decision since the Watergate scandal engulfed his administration, Nixon demonstrated the current dominance of political factors over economic considerations. Against the advice of most trusted aides, including special adviser John Connally, Nixon chose to rely on his own instincts for a bold move.

"He in effect finally told us what he wanted to do," Connally says, adding that the decision to freeze prices was uniquely the President's. Connally goes on to disclose that he expects to leave his part-time White House post soon and return to law in Houston but he emphatically denies his leaving is related to his being ignored.

Nixon felt a bold move was needed to restore the confidence of both Americans and foreigners in his ability to govern, especially to manage the overheated U.S. economy, according to high government officials and other Washington analysts.

In Nixon's decision to impose a comprehensive price freeze of up to 60 days while he works out a new system of Phase 4 price and wage controls, the analysts see these implications:

— The White House has bought short-term relief from the problem that ranks No. 1 with most Americans: The rising cost of living. The freeze will temporarily quiet the President's political critics who have been demanding strong anti-inflation medicine. And it will reassure the price-conscious consumer that Washington is worrying about more than Watergate.

— But the freeze risks a buildup of price pressures that could damage the follow-on Phase 4 controls from the outset. Administration planners concede this means that Phase 4 controls will have to be stiff and strictly enforced. Companies and unions can expect much more surveillance and control than they felt in the relatively relaxed Phase 3 system.

— The President has created new frustrations within his official family. Treasury Secretary George Shultz and White House economist Herbert Stein have had their advice for gentler action repudiated. Connally says that despite talks of a split between him and Shultz, the two men were able to agree on a recommended course of action, which the President rejected as too mild. Insiders say the President was distracted and aloof during the high-level debate over new economic policy.

— The President's decision to go for a price freeze, insiders say, basically rested in the economic outlook and in the White House ability to act, and a judgment that anything short of a freeze would have been considered too mild to be effective.

— These factors put politics and psychology above economics, officials admit. "It isn't politics in a grubby sense," insists one. "It's just doing something to regain people's confidence that we are acting in a responsible manner, to give the citizens an assurance that we are governing."

Public speculation about a possible price freeze had become self-fulfilling, a White House economist adds. "Probably nothing else would have appeared to be strong action" against inflation, he remarks. He indicates the President felt that a tightening of the Phase 3 rules or a selective freeze would have been dismissed by political critics, dollar speculators and stock-market investors as a mere band-aid on an inflationary cancer.

Administration officials say they're little worried that the freeze itself will cause many problems. They figure businesses can survive 60 days without overwhelming problems. But they are worried about the Phase 4 thaw.

"We recognize there are going to be more (inflationary) pressures this time than there were after the first freese" in 1971, says a White House economist. At that time, the economy was sluggish and price pressures weren't intensed, now, government price indexes are leaping at the fastest pace since the Korean War. The new freeze "is like clamping a lid on the teapot when the fire's still going," says an executive on the administration's labor-management advisory committee.

Right now, adminstration planners haven't any precise idea how to solve the problem. "The question is, how can we come out (of the freeze) without a bulge" in prices, says one adviser.

Exports don't worry Europe

By United Press International

European agricultural and trade officials expressed little concern Friday over President Nixon's request for authority to curb exports of American farm products. Many thought it was a domestic political ploy and said they doubted it would affect their import of food.

In another important trade development, the Japanese cabinet approved a plan Friday to liberalize imports of integrated circuits and computers over the next two years. Japan now bans imports of computers and relaxation of the ban is expected to help the United States, a primary producer of computers and integrated circuits, to improve its balance of trade with Japan.

Officials in Geneva said Friday any restriction of farm exports would result in complaints to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the international structure of trade barriers worked out nearly a decade ago.

GATT officials said they did not believe Nixon would take action to curb farm exports in the near future, even if he received authorization from Congress to do so.

The officials pointed out that export restrictions would not help the American balance of payments. They said his request for authority to restrict exports meant he was "obviously...more concerned about inflation."

Oddly, European officials said, the United States has long pressed the Common Market to ease its restrictions on farm imports in order to improve the American balance of payments position.

The French financial newspaper Les Echoes quoted financial experts as saying "Nixon's farm policy now leans—temporarily without doubt—on the refusal to sell cereals. This is a new angle when one remembers the insistence of the U.S. recently on putting soy beans and wheat in the Common Market, et cetera."

The newspaper recalled a recent visit to Europe by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz who demanded that Europe open its doors wide to imports of American feed grains. Other French financial commentators said Nixon's request for authority to curb exports of farm products "without doubt was taken in response to acid criticism following the sale to Russia last year of nearly 20 million tons of cereals to the detriment of the harvest and of prices on the American market."

A spokesman for the British Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food said the department would have no official comment.

"It's difficult to condemn or applaud his action until its known what measures he will take," the spokesman said.

'New' Vietnam peace gets off to shaky start

SAIGON (UPI) — The second attempt to achieve a working cease-fire in Vietnam got off to a shaky start Friday. The South Vietnamese command reported 21 violations in the first hours of the new truce.

The command said at at least three South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and four others wounded in the first four hours of the truce. which became effective at noon Friday (midnight Thursday EDT).

The Saigon command also said it could not abide by one of the provisions in the new 14-point truce communique worked out in Paris by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the command spokesman, said there was no way the Communists and South Vietnamese could fulfill the provision calling for battlefield commanders of both sides to meet in the field during the first day of the truce and settle local difficulties peacefully.

Dollar plunges to new low

LONDON (UPI) — The value of the dollar plunged to record lows in "panicky" trading on exchanges in Frankfurt and Amsterdam Friday and lost value elsewhere in Europe. Gold prices climbed still higher.

Bankers and financial experts blamed President Nixon's new anti-inflation program for the drop in the dollar. Moreover, Friday has often been a bad day for the dollar as dealers dump excess dollars before the weekend and unexpected economic developments which occasionally are announced when markets are closed.

Gold jumped $3.25 an ounce to $121 on the big London bullion market during the afternoon, then slipped to close at $120 an ounce, up $2.25 from Thursday. This was nearly three times the "official" U.S. price of $42.22 an ounce.

Dollar values in Europe at the close of trading Friday compared with Thursday's close.

Father's Day

By NORMAN LEHDE

Two of our younger citizens were recently discussing Father's Day.

"I don't know what to do for Pop on Father's Day."

"Why don't you tell him you forgive him for voting for Richard Nixon?"

"In the first place, he probably wouldn't believe me, and in the second place, I don't want him to get angry again."

"Is he angry at Nixon?"

"No, just at all these subversives that are starting court actions and holding hearings at the expense of the President's national security."

"Can't you convince him that he is a little mixed up?"

"No, Mom has been trying to do that for years."

"Has he been to any schoolboard meetings lately?"

"Not since he told the directors that if the children were enjoying school, there must be something wrong with the school."

"Does he still belong to the PTA?"

"No, he quit when they wanted to put him on a committee to promote a greater sports program for girls."

"Doesn't he believe in exercise for girls?"

"Only when there is work to be done around the house."

"Has your mother told him anything about the Womens' Liberation Movement?"

"I doubt it. He still thinks the Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution is unconstitutional."

"What makes him so old-fashioned?"

"He says he tries to live in the tradition of one hundred per cent Americanism."

"Maybe you ought to just get him an Uncle Sam suit."

"What are you going to do for your pop?"

"After dinner I think we will all take a ride to Marshalls Creek."

"Why Marshalls Creek?"

"After a ride on Rte. 209 father always tells us how wonderful it is to be home again."

Sherwood plans contested

By RUTH VINCE
Pocono Record Reporter

HONESDALE — Dreher Township Solicitor Kathleen McDonnell has requested a hearing on behalf of township supervisors to determine the validity of three subdivision plans filed by Sherwood Forest, a second home development in Newfoundland.

Sherwood Forest developers were taken into court by the township once before when in October 1972 the development filed a petition to incorporate into a separate borough.

On April 25 of this year the court ruled against Sherwood Forest and petition was denied because the court felt there was no present indication for a need for borough government.

The litigation now in court stems from the filing of plans by Sherwood Forest in July 1972 in the Wayne County Register and Records Office in Honesdale.

Supervisors are challenging the filing of the plans because they feel the plans were not processed in accordance with the townships subdivision regulations.

The plans call for lots smaller than subdivision regulations allow.

Last summer when plans were submitted, Carroll F. Krautter, Nelson Woltjen, Irene Wert and Mickey Deskus, members of Dreher's Planning Commission and two supervisors Arthur Crocker and Donald Stevens signed the plans.

Crocker is still a member of the supervisory board, Stevens resigned last year and was replaced by Burton Gilpin.

Township auditors have filed surcharges against Crocker and Stevens alleging they signed the plans knowing Sherwood Forest was in violation of subdivision regulations.

No charges have been filed against the members of the planning commission since they are not a governing body.

The surcharges against the two supervisors stem from an audit of township records when it was found that legal cost had been incurred by the township by taking Sherwood Forest to court on the alleged illegal filing of plans.

Township supervisors have withheld wages due Crocker and Stevens pending the outcome of the hearing and the total legal costs to the township.

A hearing scheduled for June 13 for the alleged illegal filing of the plans was postponed because one of the attorney's was unable to appear.

The case will be heard at 10 a.m., Tuesday, July 10 before Judge James Rutherford in the Wayne County Court.

Progress on I-84 may help Milford

Record County Bureau

SCRANTON — Further completion of Interstate 84 this fall may relieve the beleagured Borough of Milford of some truck traffic.

The interstate, now open to Rte. 390 in Blooming Grove, will then open a 10-mile stretch to Rte. 191 in Greentown.

Rte. 191 intersects with Interstate 80 in Stroudsburg as does Rte. 209, the present truck route from I-80 to I-84 in Milford.

According to Pike County Commissioner Warner Depuy, the extension of I-84 to Greentown could diminish truck numbers in Milford "provided truckers will be as cooperative as they say they will."

"We've received assurances from several truck companies they they will reroute their trucks from Rte 209 as soon as I-84 goes someplace feasible for a truck route," Depuy said.

Sighs of relief from truck noise in Milford, however, may not be heard until I-84 goes as far west as Rte. 348 outside of Scranton. At that time, trucks may see fit to buck the short construction route between I-84 and I-81 in Scranton rather than taking Rte. 209.

Although the Scranton office of the Department of Transportation says it is letting bids for the final phase to Rte. 348 "pretty soon." However, completion of the roadway is still three years away, according to Ray Budowski in Scranton.

Garvey takes seat on board

MATAMORAS — Eugene Garvey of Matamoras, a successful candidate for the office of school director in the spring primary, was named by the Delaware Valley School Board Thursday to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Nancy Sigal, who resigned last month.

Garvey, present at the meeting, received his oath of office from the secretary Mrs. Patricia Marley. Mrs. Sigal's term would have expired in December.

The directors followed a recommendation by the district superintendent, Dr. F. William Ricker, and rejected the bids received for placing portable classrooms at the Milford Elementary School. The district will now seek other available classroom space in the borough.

Following a conference with insurance agent Donald Kayton, the directors voted to take out a $1 million dollar error and omission policy and to increase their present accident coverage from $1 million to $3 million. Further study will be made relative to additional increases of the accident policy.

The board approved participation in two federal programs.

West End Notes

BRODHEADSVILLE — A special meeting of the Chestnuthill Township Supervisors will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 19, at the municipal building on Rt. 715. The officials will accept bids for a new 1974 dump truck at that time.

BRODHEADSVILLE — The regular meeting of the Chestnuthill Township Planning Commission will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 20 at the township municipal building. The township engineer is expected to present a list of apparent violations in the township subdivision code, since the ordinance went into effect last year.

GILBERT — Any group wishing to take over the kitchen at the West End Fair this year at a cost of $600 should contact Fair Secretary Larry Krome in Gilbert within the next two weeks.

KUNKLETOWN — The regular meeting of the Eldred Township Planning Commission will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday June 22 at the Eldred School in Kunkletown.

Nixon hopes cooperation thaws Congress' cold war

BY DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottaway New Service
Washington Bureau

Laird, the former Defense secretary who will be the President's domestic policy chief, was a member of the House for 16 years. He has friends in both parties and has told them he believes that "total openness" with Congress is the best hope Nixon has of getting his programs considered. They believe him.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is restyling White House operations in hopes of thawing the cold war between the Administration and Congress.

Closer cooperation with the lawmakers on a bipartisan basis apparently has developed as a significant byproduct of the gray cloud of "Watergate."

And while it may be premature to detect a silver lining in Nixon's relations on Capitol Hill, both Republicans and Democrats have reacted favorably to the replacements for H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the unpopular palace guardsmen who resigned in the wake of the Watergate scandal.

Alexander Haig, Melvin Laird and the new team of politically-savy congressional liaison people are part of the grand design to bring Congress into a two-way communication with the White House at a crucial point in the Nixon presidency.

Congressional Republicans are delighted that Nixon is bringing men into his entourage who understand Congress and who have political seasoning. Democrats, like Senate Leader Mike Mansfield, are equally pleased, if for no other reason than that they expect to be consulted more.

Privately, and often publicly these days, members of Congress pin the entire blame for the recent poor relations with the White House on Haldeman and Ehrlichman who, they say, not only displayed disdain and contempt for the views of Congress but also failed to appreciate the need for consultation on policy matters.

Some Republicans said the former "palace guard" took their time about returning calls, rarely allowed the president to be alone with them and were generally unresponsive to congressional requests. One of Mr. Nixon's new aides, without conceding the validity of the charge, predicted at least that "access will be more visible" in the future.

Senate GOP leaders have already found that chief of staff Haig is taking their views to the President and they even hold out hope that Nixon will come to the Capitol on occasion and talk with them. They also say that the congressional liaison staff under William Timmons appears to be more relaxed and more responsive than under the previous management. It is being beefed up with bright young men, all of whom have worked for GOP members of Congress.

The new liaison men with the "Hill" are prepared to work 12-hour days trying to convince the sensitive senators they will be in on the takeoffs as well as the landings. They will be consulted on nominations, instead of being told who the White House wants. They will be asked for ideas and given at least a taste of sharing in policy-making. This is what the President is promising, at any rate.

At last week's leadership session in the White House, according to one participant, there was substantial give and take and the lawmakers were told they could come in with their own agenda at every third meeting.

Congress is generally pleased also that Nixon has junked his earlier concept of "super Cabinet" members acting as counselors to the President to coordinate overlapping functions in some Departments. This was not working and created confusion at the Capitol.

Now the Cabinet officers will have direct lines of communication to the President and, Nixon says, will deal with him on a co-equal basis. The President also has told his Cabinet members to give increased attention to greater coordination and cooperation with members of Congress of both parties.

The new team members say the change in style of operations does not represent any change in philosophy or any feeling that the mandate the President won in November is changed one iota. It does reflect a determination go to on, despite the setback of Watergate, in an effort to accomplish the Nixon goals.

The immediate task is to get the men on Capitol Hill to focus on the important legislative issues that have been languishing for months in the political ebbtide of Watergate.

Corps overstating squatter case

No doubt there is the potential for violence down in squatter land along the Delaware River. But a Wounded Knee?

That seems to us a rather far-fetched allegory for the Corps of Engineers to be drawing. First of all, that element the Corps characterizes as violence-prone is a definite minority and are feared and mistrusted even by the other squatters who form the Squatters Parents Committee.

Secondly, the squatters' beef with the government over ownership of the land by the river is a limited dispute, embodying none of the civil rights questions posed by the Indian uprising at Wounded Knee, S.D.

The Record recognizes the possibility of trouble (in fact, we ran a series of articles last winter detailing the problems there) but we don't think the situation has or this point has been noticeably indifferent to the problems caused by the squatters' presence.

Of course, there always is the possibility that the Corps is exaggerating things to wring a little sympathy and a lot of action out of the government, which up to this point has been noticeably indifferent to the problems caused by the squatters' presence.

Nonetheless, we can't see hundreds of squatter sympathizers flooding the area in defense of that small group of homesteads, shacks and dugouts ("bunkers" says the Corps, conjuring up images of trench warfare).

We want action on the squatter question as much as the Corps, but we don't think the matter is helped any by alarming the local population. The only thing that could do is spark the violence the Corps wants to avoid.

Agreement hopeless?

We don't hold out much hope for the latest agreement to calm down the waves of hostility still coursing through the sad land of Vietnam.

In order for such an agreement to work, all parties must be willing to make it work. And we don't see any lessening of the communists' desire to gain control over that entire nation. Nor do we see any weakening in the South's desire to remain out of the communist camp.

Add to that the fact that much of the agitation for a communist government in the South is being advanced by little groups of undercover operators and terrorists mostly out of touch with (and probably suspicious of) the North, and you have a poor outlook for any kind of lasting peace in Southeast Asia.

That doesn't mean we have to stop trying, though. At the very least, we no longer are directly involved in the fracas there. Peace would be a boon, of course: directly involved or not, it's costing us a bundle to support the South in its continuing battles.

Bureau of Mines acting indiscreetly

WASHINGTON — Two top Bureau of Mines officials have accepted free air travel from the coal companies they regulate or from contractors doing business with the government.

Both the director, Dr. Elburt Osborn, and a deputy director, Donald Schlick, appear to have violated a regulation, which expressly forbids employes from accepting gifts and gratuities from companies under their jurisdiction.

Here are the details:

— On March 19, 1971, Osborn was asked to address a mine safety meeting in Indiana, Pa. When he declined because of poor airline connections, an executive with the Florence Mining Company, James Hurley, offered to charter a plane. Osborn flew the chartered aircraft to the meeting and flew the same company plane back to Washington the next day.

Missed flight

— On September 18, 1971,Osborn missed a commercial flight which would have taken him from Charleston, W. Va., to Johnstown, Pa. The president of the giant Consolidation Coal Company, John Corcoran, offered a ride in the firm's plane. Osborn accepted.

— Three weeks later, on October 7, 1971, Osborn rode in a Pittston Company helicopter from Charleston, W. Va., to Lexington, Ky., where he addressed the Kentucky Coal Association. To the coal operators' surprise, Osborn lambasted them for their high fatality rate.

— On May 24, 1972, another Pittston helicopter ferried the Bureau of Mines director over Buffalo Creek, W. Va., the area that was devastated three months earlier when a Pittston dam broke and coal waste poured down the valley.

Donald Schlick and three of his aides managed to obtain some hard-to-get tickets to the 1973 superbowl game in Los Angeles. While they were on the West Coast, they rode in a Food Machinery Corporation plane from Los Angeles to a mine site in Wyoming where the three Bureau of Mines officials were headed FMC corporation happens to hold a multi-million-dollar research contract with the Bureau of Mines. For this indiscretion, Schlick was officially warned that his conduct henceforth must be "beyond reproach."

White House favorite

— Nevertheless, Schlick allegedly has been involved in at least two other conflicts of interest, involving football tickets and corporate plane rides, with organizations doing business with the Bureau of Mines. Neither of these, however, were investigated. The reason, according to insiders, is that Schlick is considered a White House favorite.

Footnote: Director Osborn explained that when he accepted the free plane rides, there was no policy forbidding them. It "never occurred" to him at the time, he told us, that he was doing wrong. "But I wouldn't do it again," he promised. We were unable to reach Schlick for comment.

Who's Lying: Rep. Roger Zion, R-Ind., is sputtering over our report that he pressured Washington lobbyists into donating prizes for the annual Congressional Golf Tournament. A "perverted exaggeration of the truth," he called our story.

Unfortunately for the former Boy Scout leader, we have seen his personal memos on the golf gala. We will quote a few typical highlights so his constituents can judge who is indulging in "perverted exaggeration."

Zion's first call for boodle, his files show, was a memo to lobbyists asking: "Would you please find some suitable prize (or prizes) that you would like to contribute and send same to me..."

No lobbyist, who ever expected to get a legislative favor out of Congress, could ignore such a blatant appeal. Back came the prizes by the carload. One staff member described the scene for us in a written statement.

"Zion had more booty in his office than King Farouk in his salad days," reported the witness. "There was stuff in closets, stashed under desks and in the congressman's own office. He had stacks of expensive golf balls, an outdoor grill, golf bags...as well as two television sets."

Other lobbyists sent gift certificates. Typical was the tire lobby, which notified Zion: "The Rubber Manufacturers Association on behalf of the five tire manufacturers listed below is happy to make available a $60 gift certificate..."

Zion's colleagues became embarrassed over the gush of gifts. Tourney chairman Rep. Burt Talcott, R-Calif., who put Zion in charge of collecting prizes, quietly notified other members of the prize committee, according to his files, "not to solicit any more gifts or prizes."

As Talcott commented: "This guy (Zion) got overeager. None of us approved it."

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Not what's done, but by who

Editor, The Record:

I can't help but wonder how the press coverage of Watergate would have been handled if the president were Richard M. Kennedy? Somehow I feel that it would have been so much different — proving that it's not what's done, but who does it that makes the difference.

Is it not a known fact that the Kennedys could subdue, if not stop entirely, unfavorable articles; have unflattering pictures of them not printed; and have misbehaving reporters assigned elsewhere?

Are our memories so short that we can't remember how Kennedy carried Philadelphia Pennsylvania in the 1960 election? Just by one of the ugliest, most dishonest ballot-padding counts in history. (Nixon didn't have the "deceased" votes that Kennedy had to help him). When it was brought out what had happened, a lid was quickly put on that "mess" of pottage and that was that!

How would Nixon have fared if he had had a Chappaquiddick? How short-lived that accident was, and how conveniently it faded out of the press, so as not to keep people aroused.

For years all the facts of John Kennedy's assassination were kept from us. Do we know the whole story, even now?

It would seem that if you are not born with charisma, oozing charm and-or good looks — you have had it! Because our President (and he is still our President) is thought by some to lack these required attributes, he has had an impossible time trying to be shown the consideration he is due. Charles Manson and Angela Davis were given better treatment.

This country that he loves was over him like maggots on meat last December. And then he proved himself. Watergate will be cleaned up and the government set back in order. Give him a chance to prove himself again. Instead, we are like jackals — always at his heels, waiting to pounce and devour.

The President has asked everyone in this country, on many occasions, to pray for him in his awesome job. Have we? Let us each, every day, pray for our country and those in authority; asking God Almighty to intervene and help our country and bless it as He did in the past when we loved Him as we should.

"If my people, which are called by name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Memories of summers past

Editor, The Record:

In recent years our visits to Stokes' Mill have changed — less and less swimming and more and more lounging. On Thursday, June 7 we found the water high and almost muddy. There had been heavy rain the night before.

We were parked on the East Stroudsburg side having stopped to chat with Mr. Goucher. His residence and employment at Stokes' parallel our own span as a frequenter of what we have always considered the only place to swim. This would be a 48 year period.

There was little activity that afternoon. No one sat with back pressed against the dam. This is done when the water is not quite so high. If you are planning to cool off this way, a point to remember — it's very warm and humid under that sheet of water thundering over your head. As for breathing, one can stay under indefinitely, perhaps conversing with a companion.

The chute of rapids down the middle was extremely rough. One young fellow went down via truck innertube. His ride was fast and ended when the tube seemed to catch in an undertow at a small falls which normally does not exist at that point — the start of the quiet, shallow stretch between the upper rocks and the flat, sloping rock 200 feet downstream.

Not feeling up to crossing the stream — with left hand in a splint from an accident a few days before — we were content to climb down the remains of the old mill race walls and dangle our feet in a relatively quiet pool.

We were disappointed to see no one indulging in a favorite activity of ours — getting a running start and then sliding over the slippery rock into the water where the Brodheads narrows.

Sitting there last Thursday set the scene for a nostalgia kick. We missed the rumble of cars passing over the old narrow bridge closed many years ago. It stood unused until the flood of 1955 and provided shade. Memories came back of an entire day including noon and evening meals spent with the family on the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the flood.

These thoughts brought with them remembrances of other days and other swimming spots — Lambert's Single and Double on the McMichaels, and Indian on the Pocono.

We thought too of the daredevils who used to dive off the bridge between the two towns into the Brodheads.

There was a period when we went to Elenberger's Landing and swam down to Karamac on the New Jersey side. The swim back was not easy with a very strong current to buck at the start and them a long pull in fairly quiet water the rest of the way.

A lot of faces and a few names seemed to drift by, like Gene and Bink Shafer, John Devivo and Les Dimmick. That was a slowly paced time and though we can not go back, it is pleasant to think back to those days.

Watergate matter not comic

Editor, The Record:

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the well publicized Watergate matter is not the almost comic, Keystone cop type break-in itself, but rather the splinters of information we are receiving about the total arrogance with which the executive branch executed its power.

The true crime is not the break-in but rather the rationale for this action which was given to the people. One may find some possible reasons for preventive action against groups such as the SDS or Weathermen in the name of national security. However when this blanket term is used to rationalize out and out political espionage, the excuse becomes ludicrous.

The Cuban members of the Watergate seven say they were motivated by the hope of "freeing" Cuba. In other words one crime could possibly spin-off into another, namely the intervention of the United States in the internal affairs of another sovereign nation. This, and not the break-in itself was the crime these men committed. The crime of one evil being completed for the hope of another far greater crime, that being Cuba.

A strong analogy can be drawn between the Watergate matter and an iceberg, only one-third of the true facts of this administration remains exposed. One need only bring to mind the testmony of the excutive of the well-known American industrial power as to the pressure put on the CIA to help defeat the now president of Chile, to understand the word imperialist need not only be thought of as a mere propagandist phase.

The freezing of congressional funds by the executive branch serves as another example of a complete cut into the heart of the constitution. However the true crime of the Nixon Administration is its total lack of concern for the working class in America. The love affair between Nixon and the capitalists has digressed from a flirtation into a ravenous lust.

One need only skim the surface of Phase I and II to understand that although wages and prices were frozen, profits were not. And now with the gasoline crisis lurking around the corner the Administration solution is to raise the federal tax on each gallon of gas. The rationale is that this will help the ecology and ease the shortage!

It certainly will. In combination with the proposed state tax and the gas industry's price increase this federal tax will make sure that the average man returns to the shoe-leather express. Nixon has Americanized the French phrase "Let 'em eat cake" into "Let 'em walk", and the them, then as now, is the working class.

The time has come to symbolicly castrate the power of the executive branch by the use of the impeachment process. We must redirect the flow of power so that it again comes from the people to the government and not from the government to the people. We must reassert to ourselves and to those who run for office that the voice of the masses of people is still more powerful than the money of the elite. On the verge of our 200th birthday let us, the people, stand up and be heard and not be sheep dumb to the slaughter.

The impeachment process may be a catastrophic step for one man, but it would be a giant step in the right direction for the recapturing of political power for the working man! Let us decapitate the venomous head of the power elite, and always be on guard that it does not grow another.

Youth's community

How to get involved

By TOM SHEPSTONE

Last week we talked with you about some ways you could get more involved in community activities. This week we'd like to go into a little more detail about how to begin by presenting some ideas for stimulating interest in starting a Youth Community Development Club.

What are some ways you can get others interested?

First, you should become familiar with what youth groups in this and other areas have been able to accomplish. Glance through this newspaper and note some of the community activities of other clubs. Look at some magazines such as Reader's Digest or Boy's Life and find some examples of active youth. We will be trying to keep you posted on some of the local happenings. Then take a few of these examples back to your own club and ask the question, "Why can't we do that or something like it?"

Another method you might use is that of simply searching out individuals who have interests similar to yours and are willing to work with you. Once you have gathered a small group to be a nucleus for a larger club, take your ideas to some adult who is active in community affairs.

Ask him or her what you can do to help them or how you might go about doing something you are interested in. Once you have identified things to do, look for another adult who is willing to help you and act as an adult leader or sponsor.

Then publicize what your group is and what it plans to do and ask for new members. If you can make the news, you'll stimulate more interest.

A third way to develop interest is to show your club or class, whatever it might be, what community decision involves and how interesting it can be.

How? Invite speakers to your meetings. Use games that force members to play community roles and make local government-type decisions.

One such game is "Make Your Own World," an environmental game manufactured by Coca-Cola Bottling Company. This game lets players act out different roles and vote on projects such as a hydroelectric dam or amusement park, that are proposed for the self-contained community.

The game permits the players to see how others view the community and gives everyone an idea of what things must be considered before going ahead with a project. It is a simple game, fun and can be quickly played. There are several copies available which you can borrow from the Extension Office. If you'd like to use one, call us at 421-2600 and we'll be glad to give you help.

Remember that if you can get a group that is interested, we will be willing to work with you and show you many opportunities to do something in your community. You can help play your community for the future if you're willing to work at it.

Skylab shows what Buck Rogers forgot

By JERRY E. BISHOP
Dow Jones—Ottaway News

HOUSTON — Tsk, Tsk, Buck Rogers, there are a few things you forgot to tell us about life aboard a spaceship.

Like, it takes a long time to dry off after a shower. And salt doesn't stick to your food. And your legs get smaller. And beware of tomatoes.

Such are some of the lessons the Skylab astronauts are learning as they live in the weightlessness of their huge orbiting laboratory. The three astronauts have had a lot more important things to do and talk about than just the amenities of life in space, what with the problems of the solar-cell wings, nonfunctioning batteries and the like. For example — that dramatic "space walk," the successful attempt to repair the unextended wing of solar cells to overcome the laboratory's critical power shortage.

Occasionally, however, they've sent back information on life and health in space, some of it seemingly trival. But none of it is exactly what Skylab planners or the creator of Buck Rogers had predicted.

There's the problem of trying to eat in the weightlessness of the Skylab, for example. The Skylab astronauts have a more elaborate supply and variety of canned and frozen foods than the Apollo moon astronauts had. Apparently the Skylab men were digging into some squishy canned tomatoes the other day when Skylab commander Charles Conrad Jr. was suddenly overheard telling his companions he was "flinging tomatoes all over the place."

"Hey, you know this could get to be a problem. It ain't going to bother us right away, but that stuff's got to get rotten after awhile. You've got to eat the whole tomato," he warned.

Weightless meals troublesome

And Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin, the first physician in space, finds it difficult to season food. "I don't use the salt much," he reported. "It tends to bounce off the food a lot. It (the food) doesn't taste very good." Later, Dr. Kerwin reported a minor kitchen disaster with a bag of dehydrated corn. "The bag failed at its seam prior to being rehydrated. We've got corn powder all over everything," he said.

Personal hygiene has its problems, too. Taking a shower in the skylab bathroom is "pleasant," Dr. Kerwin says. But, he says, nobody's going to drown "because the water doesn't fly through the air,. it sticks to whatever is here, mostly you and partly the walls. It takes forever to dry both one's self and the walls. . .even using that inadequate little vacuum cleaner that we've got," he explained. In fact, the drying-off problem is so tedious that the Skylab crew recommends allotting an hour for taking a shower on future missions.

Then there's the location of the toilet. "I think it's a bad idea to have the head right next to the sleeping quarters," Dr. Kerwin said. Whenever someone uses it and has to turn on a suction fan "it tends to wake people up at night."

The air pressure in the skylab is only five pounds per square inch, about a third the air pressure at sea level on earth. That, plus the weightlessness, led to a discovery by Dr. Kerwin. "I'm trying to whistle but I can't," he remarked on one conversation. "Yes, you can learn to whistle but it takes a few days, responded Skylab Pilot Paul Weitz. "You've got to hold your lips a little farther apart."

'Hoarse all the time'

The astronauts also are having to shout to each other in the roomy skylab, a problem never encountered in the relatively cramped quarters of the Apollo moon craft. "We're all hoarse all the time," says Dr. Kerwin. "I guess the sound is not as strong or doesn't carry as far or something."

Of a more serious nature is the fact that the astronauts are shrinking. As part of a medical experiment, tape measurements are made periodically of the circumference of the astronauts' calves. After two weeks, each astronaut had lost about a half-inch of calf circumference, and the loss was continuing. Doctors didn't expect the shrinkage to occur so rapidly.

The explanation, according to the doctors, is that on earth the pull of gravity keeps even the tiniest blood vessel in the legs filled. In space, however, there's no gravity to hold the blood in the legs, and thus they just aren't as full of fluid as normally. In addition, after many days in zero gravity, where it doesn't require as much muscle effort to perform a task as on earth, there is a loss of muscle tissue from lack of use.

The prime aim of the Skylab project is to see what the physical effects are of living in the weightless state for a long time.

The Green Thumb

Watch out for walnut 'pirates'

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

WALNUT RUSTLERS: Watch out for the man who offers to cut down a "diseased" black walnut tree for you. It might cost you some money.

Here's what happened to a friend recently. He was notified that this black walnut tree (18-inch trunk) was diseased and should be cut down, "before the disease spreads." Stupidly, he allowed the tree to be cut down and hauled away. It was like giving away $2,000, for that was the value of the black walnut tree.

Just because a tree has a dead limb on it, is no sign the tree is dying, any more than a man's dying when he has a bad tooth.

Black walnut trees are disappearing at a fast rate all over because the wood is prized for furniture makers all over the world. Another friend of ours had three walnut trees cut down and hauled away from his wood lot during the three days he was on vacation. Time Magazine (April 16) states that a top quality black walnut tree can bring as much as $15,000, and it tells how rustlers strike at night. Some are armed with chain saws silenced with auto mufflers

We have often advocated planting black walnut trees on spare land. You may not reap the benefits in your lifetime, but your children may. In 25 to 30 years walnut trees will mature and be large enough to cut down.

At present, the logs are shipped to Japan and Germany to be made into veneer, and then shipped back.

All parts of the tree are useful. Branches can be made into furniture legs and braces. Roots made into gunstocks.

Some gardeners have a walnut tree growing too close to their vegetable garden, and it may be necessary to cut the tree. Check with your County Agent before you do it. Walnut trees give off a toxic material known as Juglone, which causes a wilt among certain crops such as peppers, tomatoes and others.

By the way, did you know that some people use the walnut leaves to prevent sunburn? The Russians rub freshly ground walnut leaves on the skin. Juglone (or Lawson, a chemical cousin) protects people suffering from allergic sensitivity to ultraviolet light. They also give the skin a tan look, the "in" thing today.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Nat King Cole's singer-daughter Natalie's N.Y. triumph at the Copa was considerably diluted — her hotel room and her car were ripped off — all her wardrobe. . .Jimmy Durante too quietly has retired. His stroke left him paralyzed on the left side. He's 80. . .Tennis stars Harry Hopman and Gene Scott are tied at 40-Hate. . ."Pippin" is Bdwy.'s liveliest smash musical but it wasn't simple to raise the $750,000 cost. Producer Stuart Ostraw mortgaged his mansion for $120,000 as seed money; then investors took his enthusiastic word. They'll all get rich.

Flashes are expected from the Peter Lawfords, the Dino di Laurentiises (Sylvana Mangano) and the Peter Shaws (Angela Lansbury). . .Our note here on Pat Boone's fiscal agonies was corroborated by Forbes Mag which details the deterioration of Pat's millions. . .Mayor Lindsay is fuming like Donald Duck at his "image" in Peter Maas' new "Serpico" honest-cop book. Hizzoner comes off the villain.

Only married Jackson Five member, Tito, and wife Dolores make it the Jackson Six in August. . .Sarah Miles' manager David Whiting, the drug-overdose victim in the weird Burt Reynolds-triangle, won't stay dead: his mother wants flamboyant lawyer Melvin Belli to dig deeper. . .Eva Gabor busted a toe. . .David Eisenhower's editors aren't too choked up; nor are the other sports writers. . .The Greek spot Mykonos is folding for the summer; then, who knows. . .Shirley Bassey just was signed to a Carnegie Hall concert pact at the biggest guarantee in the history of that cheerfully august auditorium: $75,000. Deal set by her agent Oscar Cohen is considered mildly sensational.

Mickey Spillane's sexy blonde wife Sherri stars in "South Pacific" at the Las Vegas Union Plaza . . . Hugh O'Brian huffed out of "My Fair Lady" due June 19 at Valley Forge. Seems Jane Powell gets the Big Billing; what ever happened to The Play's The Thing?

Peter Yates did such a walloping directorial job on "Friends of Eddie Coyle" that Paramount tried to bonus him with a Rolls. Eats too much gas, Pete said. Took the five-figure cash instead. . .Arndt Krupp von Bohlen, weirdo heir to the Nazi-Bosch Krupp family factories which backed every German dictator since the emperors is living spectactularly dangerously beyond his income: $600,000 a year for life, the German gov't gives him just to stay away from the once family monopoly.

Louise Lasser (Woody Allen's happily divorced ex) pulled out of the "6 Rms Riv Vu" tour for a film role. Trish (Mrs. George Scott) Van Devere and Marcia Rodd now are up for it.

Two UN officials slugged it out on 1st Ave. over Teni, Latin singer at the Ali Baba East. . .Big Band Loose Ends: Jimmy Nottingham of the old Charlie Barnett crew does his trumpeting thing on Long Island after a generation of tootling the Ed Sullivan Show; an oldtime ork leader Peter Van Steeden still keeps a hand in — just penned the "Official Real Estate Song" for his New Canaan, Conn. hometown.

Ann Landers

VD blues

Dear Ann Landers: I've read your column faithfully for years, and now I guess it's my turn to ask for advice. Sooner or later everybody runs into a problem they can't handle.

I am 17 years old and have going steady for two years. Several months ago my boy friend told me he had VD and begged me to get tested right away. Well, I did, and sure enough I had it, too. Both of us were treated free by the City Health Department doctor and he didn't tell our parents. (Thank God THAT law was changed last year in our state).

We are completely cured, although we have to go back every six months for two years to make sure the cure is permanent. The question I need an answer to is this: I babysit with an adorable little boy. I live in fear that I might have given him the infection. I would never be able to live with myself if anything happened to that child and it was my fault.

Should I suggest to his parents that they have the boy tested and trust them not to tell my folks? —

G. C. N. Y.

Dear G. C.: Yes. The chances are very slim that the child contracted the disease, but it's a chance you should NOT take.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is from Caracas, Venezuela, where your column appears in the Caracas Daily Journal. Since you are syndicated in many foreign countries and read so widely, will you please let your readers know that Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon are available in 80 countries outside of the United States.

Anyone who wants to know how and where to get help with a drinking problem should write to A. A. Services Incorporated, Box. 459, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10017. Thank you, Ann. We appreciate your support. —

Keep it clean

By Jean Adams

CURSES: (Q.) I have two girl friends. One of then cusses, the other doesn't. I don't either. All three of us are 12. The noncusser and I have a rule. When our friend cusses we won't talk to her the rest of the day.

This makes her very mad and she acts bratty toward us. It does not cure her, either. Should we put up with her cussing or stop being her friends? I know cussing is supposed to be catching and I don't want it to catch me.

Trying to Keep It Clean in Maryland

(A.) There is another aspect to the use of rough language. If your friend uses it and you are with her, other people will connect it with you.

Do not stop being her friend. Do stop associating with her on a regular basis.

When she gets a little older she no doubt will learn that he way of talking doesn't pay off. Then maybe she will clean it up.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 6-16

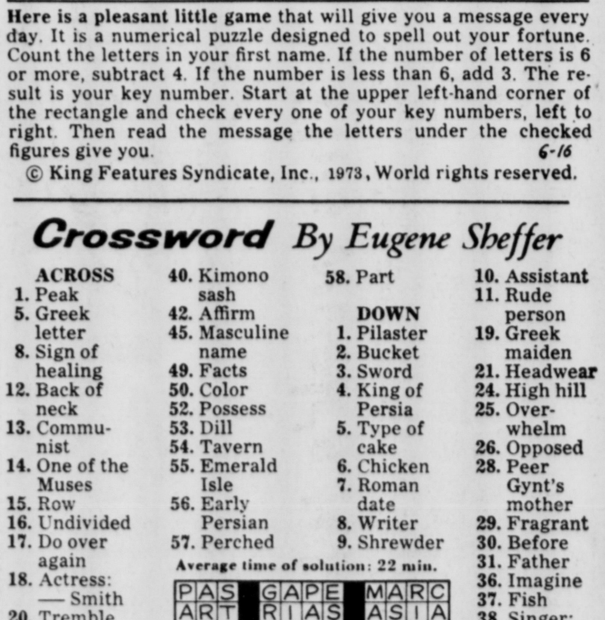
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



Contract Bridge

B. Jay Becker

When to double

East dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ 8 4
♦ A J 7 6 2
♣ A 10 3

WEST
♠ Q J 9 4
♥ 10 9 2
♦ 8 5 3
♣ 7 4 2

EAST
♥ K Q J 6
♦ K Q 10 9
♣ Q J 9 5

SOUTH
♠ A K 8 5 2
♥ A 7 5 3
♣ K 8 6

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Dble

Opening lead — ten of hearts.

There are two key factors to consider when you double a contract for penalties. The first is that you should feel confident that by doubling you do not drive the opponents out of a contract they can't make into one they can make.

The second is that the double must not alert declarer to the nature of your hand to such an extent that he can draw material advantage from the knowledge he acquires.

The last condition was not met in this deal, where West let the cat completely out of the bag by his double of four spades. The effect was that South played the hand as though he saw all 52 cards and so made the contract.

He ducked the ten of hearts and won the continuation with the ace. A diamond to the ace and a diamond ruff were followed by a heart ruff in dummy and another diamond ruff.

After cashing the K-A of clubs, declarer led still another round of diamonds from dummy in this position:

North
♠ 10 7
♦ J 7
♣ 10

West
♠ Q J 9 4
♣ 7

East
♥ K
♦ K
♣ Q J

South
♠ A K 8

East followed suit on the diamond, declarer ruffed with the king as West shed a club. By now, South had scored eight tricks, and when he next led a heart, there was no way for West to stop declarer from scoring the A-10 of trumps to put the seal on a well-played hand.

Salad days now behind?

By PATRICIA F. BODE
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

NEW YORK — Shoppers' salad days may be behind them; the price of lettuce is soaring and probably won't return to former levels.

Heads of iceberg lettuce are selling for "59 cents on up". Prices as high as 89 cents per head are reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Officials place the blame on cold rainy weather that disrupted February planting in California. They say the dispute between the Teamsters Union and Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers Union has not been a factor.

Charles W. Porter, head of the vegetable section in USDA's Economic Research Service, predicts the price of lettuce will drop after mid-June as later crops reach the market.

However, he believes prices will eventually stabilize at no lower than 33 to 39 cents a head. He says 29-cent lettuce is a thing of the past.

Other salad greens, such as endive, escarole, and spinach, may be substituted for iceberg lettuce. But Porter indicates there prices may be just as high because most greens follow the iceberg pattern.

Porter advises shoppers on the East Coast to watch for shipments of Boston, or butterhead lettuce which has darker green, waxier leaves than iceberg lettuce and may be slightly cheaper.

In most years lettuce grown locally is a good buy, but that may not be true in 1973. "This is not going to be an easy time for the salad makers of the nation," says Joyce Short, special assistant to the director of USDA's Plentyful-Foods Program. "For the first time in years, we can't put local vegetables on the plentiful-foods list because of the bad weather in so many parts of the country."

Mrs. Short has some tips:

— Buy lots of cabbage, which is only 10 to 12 cents a pound.

— Add cucumbers, carrots, thinly sliced turnips, and other vegetables that are cheaper than lettuce, including leftover cooked peas and beans.

— Try to buy only the amount of greens you need. Drain washed greens thoroughly before storing.

— Keep track of prices so you can buy particular greens when they are cheapest.

Of course, the adventuresome can shun traditional salad making and turn to cheaper, but much more bitter, raw kale and collard greens. And there's always dandelions — grown on your own lawn.

Girl receives nursing degree

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Well, now maybe Elmer David Christine will be able to finish his breakfast in peace now that his wife, Dee, is almost at the end of her duties as president of the General Hospital Auxiliary.

But I wouldn't bet on it. The reason why they haven't had an uninterrupted breakfast for two years is because that's when all the committee chairmen and other members with urgent problems knew that's when they could be sure of finding Dee at home.

After breakfast, she might be over at the hospital hospitality shop, working on the Bell School Museum down the road which will be opening Saturday's in July and August for public visitations, at a meeting planning a Historical Society program, serving on the Charity Ball Committee, or taking care of the children, horses, dogs, cats, garden, or one of the other million things she's interested in.

I can't see all of that stopping dead in its tracks. However, there may be a temporary breathing spell, while Dora Klofach takes a good look at the two years she's got ahead of her. Her ascendancy to the Hospital Auxiliary presidency has already caused repercussions and consternation in the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs where she had been slated to become president, and had to pull out of the chain of command.

The presidency of such an organization as the Hospital Auxiliary is really big business. How would anyone, man or woman, like to tackle raising $250,000 with the use of volunteers and by means of projects of genuine community value?

More power to women willing to serve in such capacities! Along with abundant health, unrationed energy, unlimited tact—and patient families.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale A. Knecht

Donna Marshall bride of Dale A. Knecht

MOUNT POCONO — Miss Donna Lou Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Marshall of Long Pond, became the bride of Dale A. Knecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Knecht, Jr., of Pocono Pines, on May 19th at 1 p.m. at Mount Pocono United Methodist Church in Mount Pocono.

Rev. Harry L. Kaufhold Jr. officiated at the double ring ceremony. Soloist was John A. Smith of Pocono Lake.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a white silk organdy gown designed by Priscilla of Boston. The empire bodice of Irish and Venice lace featured a V-neck and cap sleeves. The shaped skirt with chapel length train was of the organdy with appliques of the lace. Her headpiece was a matching chapel length mantilla. She carried a bouquet of white baby roses.

Miss Nancy G. Brader of Tannersville was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lois Marshall, sister of the bride, and Miss Kim Blakeslee, cousin of the bride. Miss Debbie Burke was junior bridesmaid and Miss Jodi Burke was flower girl.

William Lewis of Canadensis served as best man. Ushers were Bryan Moyer of Kresgeville; Dennis Knecht, brother of the bridegroom; Barry Marshall and Robert Marshall, brothers of the bride. Dean Knecht, brother of the bridegroom, served as junior usher, and Eric Silfies of Hatboro was ring bearer.

A reception for 300 people was held at the Pocono Lake Hotel. Music was supplied by the End of March.

The bridal party was entertained after the rehearsal by the parents of the bridegroom.

After a honeymoon in Bermuda, the couple will reside in Pocono Pines.

Mrs. Knecht is a graduate of Pocono Mountain High School. She is presently employed as a secretary at Northeastern National Bank of Pennsylvania in Mount Pocono.

Mr. Knecht is also a graduate of Pocono Mountain High School. He is associated in the plumbing and excavating business with his father.

Brownies show years' work

STROUDSBURG — Dramatizing the highlights of the year for Brownie Troop 332 at St. John's Lutheran Church, its members put on a skit with Lisa Sorrentino and Dierdre Werkheiser as the characters learning about the Brownie year as told by individual members:

Telling about the investiture was Ann Zacek: the three Brownie B's Karen Zacek; Easter service project, Donna Woolever; trip to WVPO, Michelle Mink; flag presentation by VW, Kathy Granville.

Tour of General Hospital, Rochelle Katz; outing to Pocono Ice-A-Rama, Glenna Reish; tour of Richards Candy Store, Tanya Smith; a riddle, Dinah Bolmar and Kim Brands; hanging carrot garden, Marilou Mullally; fly-up ceremony, Lisa Sysko.

Sit-upons they had made, Suellen Weaver; how to tie a square knot, Ann Realmuto; penny hike, Darlene Danielmicz; Juliette Low ingathering, Kathy Murphy; Mother's Day gifts, Kacey Parlette; flag ceremony, Valerie Smith; Christmas ornaments for flood victims, Kim Repsher; and giant name tags, Amy Hennet.

After the skit each girl received membership stars for the year and Lynda Mitchell and Angel Realmuto also received a star and refreshments served.

Facing future tasks

Mrs. Richard Klofach, new president of the Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Monroe County, stresses cooperation as the key to completing its pledge of $250,000 to the hospital expansion program as Mrs. Elmer D. Christine, right, president for the last two years, and Mrs. Walter Adelmann, background, first vice president look on.

Quarter million pledge goal of hospital auxiliary

EAST STROUDSBURG — Nearly 70 members of the Auxiliary of the General Hospital of Monroe County and their guests attended the Auxiliary's annual luncheon meeting, held this year at the Holiday Inn in East Stroudsburg.

Highlight of the meeting was installation of the officers for the 1973 through 1975 term. Installation ceremonies were conducted by Mrs. Seldon Ponder, past president of the local unit and currently president of the Pennsylvania Association of Hospital Auxiliaries.

Installed were: Mrs. Richard Klofach, president; Mrs. Walter Adelmann, first vice president; Mrs. John Parker, Second Vice President; Mrs. Samuel Newman, Third Vice President; Mrs. Francis Donatelli, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Lloyd, financial secretary; Mrs. John Creamer, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Paul Dellaria, recording secretary.

Mrs. Ponder challenged the new slate of officers to make good use of the many different talents of the various auxiliary members. She advised them to be fair and just, to engage in long-range planning, and to evaluate present programs. She told them not to be afraid to try something new.

"Don't be afraid of failure", she said. "The only ones who don't experience failure are those who don't do anything and that, in itself, is failure." She said, "The name of the game is love through service. Be an ambassador of good deeds through your hospital auxiliary. Know your community's responsibilities and hospital's needs. Know where you can fit into the game where nobody loses."

In accepting the presidency, Mrs. Klofach, in a brief address, alluded to the big job ahead of the auxiliary in raising the $250,000 it has pledged to the hospital.

Outgoing president, Mrs. Elmer Christine, was presented with the Past President's Pin by Mrs. Klofach, and also a president's scrapbook containing clippings and other memorabilia of her two years in office. The scrapbook was prepared by Mrs. Nona Goldsmith. Mrs. Christine complimenting her "wonderful team" said: "It shows how well we can work together when we can raise $31,000."

This is the amount the Auxiliary raised for the hospital from July 1972 through May 1973.

One more month remains before the year's books are closd. Mrs. Christine reported that the Auxiliary has already paid. $72,300 on its hospital pledge, including an additional $7,500 which was approved as part of the business of this meeting.

It was also reported by Mrs. Ponder that the Auxiliary is being written up in a national magazine, the June issue of "Volunteer Leader". The article deals with a story of the 1968 merger of the Barrett Auxiliary, the Anna Logan Society, and the hospital Auxilary into a single organziation.

Administrator of the General Hospital of Monroe County, Charles E. Swisher, Jr., gave the Auxilary a progress report on the "Expansion '73" campaign. He complimented Auxiliary member, Mrs. Evan C. Reese, chairman of the Community Appeals Division of the campaign, on the commendable job she and her workers are doing.

Swisher said he expected the campaign would reach its minimum goal within days. He pointed out that the more the campaign raised, the less the hospital would have to borrow, helping to keep down the cost of patient care over the next 20 years.

Swisher thanked the Auxiliary for their $250,000 pledge to the hospital. He said, "The pledge was an incentive to the whole community."

Open house for Buzzard anniversary

EAST STROUDSBURG — An open house celebrating the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Buzzard of Stroudsburg, R. D. 2, will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kendell Cramer, 445 White Birch St., Stroud Twp. on Saturday, June 23, from 2 to 6 p.m.

Hosts at the party are Mrs. Kendell Cramer and Mrs. Lois Lyons and all their friends and relatives are invited. No other invitations have been issued.

HENRYVILLE — Clifford Werkheiser as guest soloist will sing "Trees" as part of the dedication of a dogwood tree at Pocono Union Methodist Church as a living memorial for the late Mrs. Martha Henry on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

Community Club wins state cash awards

CANADENSIS — Delegates for the Barrett Community Club came home from the state convention held in Camp Hill with good news for the club which was the only club in this area to receive prizes.

The State Federation convention was held at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill and Mrs. Dolores Hor, co-chairman of the conservation committee, was club delegate.

Winning state honors through its conservation program of which Marion Styk is chairman, the Barrett Community Club won first place in their program to encourage young people in conservation, including student posters in the two elementary schools in the township, Smoky the Bear activities, and Girl Scout projects.

They were presented with a citation and the sum of $300 by the Shell Oil Company for this program, shown in a scrapbook demonstrating the activities.

The Barrett Community Club also received third place and $100, also from Shell Oil, for their own activities in conservation.

The money is to be spent in further conservation projects to be defined by the members at future meetings. The club will continue to meet through the summer on the first Thursday of each month.

Leisure Hour has memorial

STROUDSBURG — Memorial services for Mrs. Hattie Hicketier and Mrs. Della Anglemeyer, members of the Leisue Hour Club who have died during the year were held at the club meeting at the YMCA, conducted by the chaplain, Mrs. Lyndia Kirkhuff.

To honor their memories, the club gave $35 to the YMCA for a campership.

Members of the Leisure Hour Club joined the MORA Club for a program by Walter Lane Orchestra of Bangor and Pen Argyl. They had a sing along with old-time songs conducted by Albert Sommer. Miss Sharon O. Gress of Bangor played her guitar and sang several solos.

ESHS class of 1923 tours new high school

EAST STROUDSBURG — The 50th reunion of the class of 1923, East Stroudsburg High School, was held at the Elks Club on Saturday, June 9 when 13 of the original 29 members of the class were present with their husbands and wives.

The reunion began with a tour of the present high school buildings in East Stroudsburg at 3 p.m. and continued with a tour of East Stroudsburg State College, the Medical Center and the General Hospital of Monroe County.

A cocktail hour at the Elks Club preceded the dinner at 7:30. Elwood Mosier, class president, introduced the members, asking them to give a brief resume of their activities over the past 50 years.

Present were Lorraine Burlingame Claxton and her husband; Emilie Bauscher Bush, Sterling and Florence Cramer, Miss Katherine Delp, Miss Ruth Mackes, Elwood Mosier and wife, Alfred E. Ruster and wife, Claude E. Schick and wife, Gwendolyn Spangenburg Weston and husband, Clarence E. Staples and wife, Marjorie Wildrick Maring and husband, Kathryn Miller Snyder and husband.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Edinger, class of 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Cramer were in charge of the reunion.

Actors' wives SHARE in charity bash applause

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Johnny Carson, Sammy Davis, Don Rickles and Kirk Douglas rated healthy applause, but their wives won a standing ovation at Hollywood's splashiest party.

The ladies, along with the wives of more than a score of other stars, directors, producers and Hollywood executives, sang and danced at the 20th annual Boomtown party, a charity bash at $300 per couple.

Dinner was worth about $3. But the booze flowed like the Mississippi and the distaff members of Hollywood put on the best show in town.

Beautiful and slender, the ladies are all members of SHARE—Share Happily and Reap Endlessly—benefiting the Exceptional Children's Foundation for mentally retarded youngsters of all races.

It was their 20th anniversary for Boomtown parties which began at the old Ciro's nightclub with Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin as headliners.

Neither Martin nor Lewis was present this year. But Carson, Davis and Rickles took up the slack.

Mayor-elect Trom Bradley of Los Angeles was a surprise guest and was immediately made the butt of a string of racial jokes by Rickles.

Everyone was dressed in western costume, which has been the Boomtown style for two decades.

At the first show a handful of the SHARE ladies nervously lined up behind a picket fence (holding on for dear life) to sing a song. Over the years they gained confidence, and talent, enough to add dances, production numbers and variety show format.

Give your father what he's always wanted.
His children.

Most dads don't want expensive presents for Father's Day, in our experience.
What they want most is a little time with the people who made them what they are today: their kids.
You may be all grown up now, with lots of things to do.
But just for a day, wouldn't it be nice to be a kid again?
To spend some time with the man who spent so much time looking out for you?
We invite you and your father to come to our house for dinner on Father's Day. We'll give him a good cigar and a carnation for his lapel, just for being your father.
But you can give him his children back.

County firemen's unit to request revenue share aid

BUCK HILL FALLS — The Monroe County Firemen's Assn. will ask the Monroe County Commissioners for a slice of the county's revenue sharing funds.

Meeting at the Barrett Township Fire House in Buck Hill Falls Thursday night, the association's president, Charles Degen, said he will ask Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis for funds for a county film library for fire training purposes.

The commissioners said Monday they proposed to spent $214,304 in revenue sharing money on various county needs, but were open to requests from other county groups.

Firemen agreed the films could be used by all of the 20 volunteer fire companies in the county. They are hopeful the commissioners will go along with their appeal.

The idea for the film library was discussed at a meeting of fire chiefs held at Mount Pocono June 1.

At the meeting, the chiefs selected Charles Ayers, the association's vice president and a Barrett Township firemen as the director of the county fire school to be held in Mount Pocono Sept. 15 and 16.

Ayers said the association may be able to obtain four old buildings near the Rtes. 940 and 611 intersection in Mount Pocono for use at their fire school.

The director said seven separate types of fire classes will be offered this year featuring a course offered by the state police on laws governing fire police.

Other courses will include building fires, ladders, ventilation, masks, hand tools, forcible entry, and master and small hose lines.

Ayers noted he will try to get six state qualified instructors and assistants.

Degen made a motion which was approved increasing the salary of the instructors to $60 a day from $50.

He also pointed out he met with Mrs. Shukaitis who said the association will receive $1,500 from the commissioners toward its fire school. Degan placed a request for $2,000 for next year.

In other business, association members discussed the concern of many area residents in having their chimneys cleaned.

Residents were directed to contact their oil companies since most fire companies weren't interested in doing the chimney work.

Memorial dedication set for E-burg High

EAST STROUDSBURG — There will be a special significance to one corner of the courtyard at East Stroudsburg High School where today a memorial is being dedicated to the momory of Gary Russell Dickison, who was a 1970 graduate.

A radiant flowering crabapple tree and three ward yews have been planted as background for a white iron bench in a grape pattern. A plaque on one of the boulders, dug up when the school was built and left for its compliment to the architecture, will give the pertinent information, and bears the legend "Who thought of others more than self."

Dedicated to Marguerite Watson, an English teacher in the high school, whom Gary Dickison regarded not only as a teacher but as a friend, the memorial is the gift of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dickison of East Stroudsburg R.D. 1.

With the help of landscape architects and the school, the memorial has been placed so that it is visible from the windows of Mrs. Watson's room.

The dedication will take the form of an open house from 2 to 4 Saturday afternoon with ushers at the doors to guide the friends, high school students, townspeople and others interested in attending to the site.

Gary Dickison joined the service after his graduation and was stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., when he came home on leave and was killed in a car accident just outside his grandmother's home on Jan. 16, 1973. He would have been 21 on May 26.

For the record

A story on the Eldred Township Supervisors which appeared June 6 charged the supervisors with not reading minutes at their meetings. The headline on this story read "Eldred keeps no meeting records," which is untrue and not reflective of what the story stated.

Township Secretary Lewis Smith says that although minutes are not read at the meetings, they are kept and are available for public inspection.

Burnley Workshop hosts tours by public

KELLERSVILLE — The new Burnley Workshop of the Poconos opened its doors for a viewing public Thursday.

And what the public saw was 75 smiling mentally retarded workers being praised and encouraged by staff and directors.

It was infectious.

During the tours through the gaily lighted and brightly decorated facility, outsiders were shown that the workshop is more than a subcontracting factory.

While showing a group through the shop, Ralph Burnley, Sr. explained the workshop has medical and psychological testing facilities, vocational counseling and other needed facilities for the retarded.

Burnley said the new plant will eventually employ about 200 retarded persons.

Visitors were shown the various work areas, the sanitary facilities, warehouse room, cafeteria and kitchen and administrative offices.

The cafeteria is the only area except for the physician's examining room not yet in use. The cafeteria will be open as soon as a hood for a kitchen stove arrives and is put in place.

As visitors finished their tours Thursday evening, the possibility of another open house was being discussed. Executive Director Sal Palazzolo said directors would take up the suggestion at the August meeting.

The selection of a fitting memorial will forever stand as a tribute to the departed loved one.

WINDJAMMER CRUISE IN THE BAHAMAS

Picture yourself aboard the beautiful 84-ft. windjammer. "Gulliver", as she romps before the Trade Winds under a cloud of snowy canvas — in the blue of the open Caribbean — or scudding majestically between green islands. Old salt or newcomer — this is sailing at its glorious best! Enjoy yourself! Enjoy the sun, the salt air, the cool evening breezes, and the good companionship. Help us set sail if you like, or try a trick at the wheel — even if you have never sailed before!
The "Gulliver" will anchor early in the afternoon to give you plenty of time to swim, skin and SCUBA dive, water ski and beach comb and explore ashore. Easch day's destination is lovelier than the last. The Windswept beaches, towering palms, and coral reefs shimmering in water as clear as air, are a photographer's delight.
When the sun sets over the yardarm, it's time for all hands to head for the main salon. What a surprise! If you were expecting a straight fish diet — you were wrong! The only fish served here is the fish you catch (prepared by the ship's cook) Steaks, roasts, spaghetti, chops, etc., — all served family style, will remind you of the last time you had dinner in a fine New York restaurant (except that you are wearing a tee-shirt and cut-off shorts). In the evening there may be a native band tuning up ashore, group singing on the afterdeck, or a beach party — all under the myriad stars on a tropical night.
Tomorrow will be another day — a day of adventure at a leisurely pace.

Teenagers and adults week of July 29th. For information, contact Mr. John Jacobi, Adventure Tours, P.O. Box 631, Stroudsburg. Phone 421-6781 evenings, or Wyckoffs Travel Bureau.

Murderer asks court to reconsider conviction

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Richard Calvin Klinger, Jr., 19, asked a three-judge panel Friday to consider his felony murder conviction and life sentence they handed down more than a year ago.

Klinger, who has been in the Monroe County Jail since he was sentenced Feb. 9, 1973, sat attentively in Monroe County's Courtroom two Friday morning while his defense counsel argued for reconsideration.

Atty. Bernard Billick, co-defense counsel with Atty. Detleff Hansen, presented the appeal, arguing Klinger was not properly informed of his rights when he admitted the shotgun slaying of a Middle Smithfield Township woman to Miami, Fla. policemen.

Klinger had been arrested by Miami Beach police Oct. 12, 1971 on a charge of loitering and disorderly conduct.

Miami authorities extracted a written statement and taped confession from Klinger regarding the murder of Mrs. Regina Prosser two months before in Middle Smithfield Township.

Klinger had admitted triggering the blast that killed Mrs. Prosser Aug. 26, 1971.

Improperly advised

Billick said Friday that Klinger had not been properly advised of his constitutional rights and did not understand them when he made the confession to Miami Beach authorities.

Billick also contended evidence in the case failed to substantiate the finding of felony murder — a first degree murder because the killing was committed in conjunction with a felony.

The felony in Klinger's case was burglary, according to earlier proceedings.

Evidence had been introduced to link Klinger to an attempted break-in of Mrs. Prosser's garage and a subsequent theft of money from the victim's house after the shooting.

Billick argued the felony was not "intended" before the shooting, but was an "afterthought."

District Attorney James F. Marsh answered in a statement saying the evidence supported the findings of felony murder and life sentence.

He said the Commonwealth demands the sentence orginally imposed by the court be maintained.

Hearing the matter were Judge Fred W. Davis of the 43rd Judicial District (Ret.) President Judge Arlington W. Williams of the 43rd Judicial District and President Judge James Rutherford of the 22nd Judicial District.

The panel will deliver a conclusion on the new arguments within 30 days.

If the earlier findings are sustained, Klinger may be transferred to a state correctional institution, carrying with him the right to appeal to a higher court.

Expected to take years to complete

Housing inspections to begin soon

By STEVE DRACHLER
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — The controversial housing code, sleeping quietly lately, will awaken soon.

Dwelling inspections should begin in the Stroudsburgs as soon as the Joint Codes Enforcement Office's new assistant Completes training, according to enforcement officer Stanley Melvin.

But, Melvin emphasizes, residents shouldn't become alarmed about the coming inspections.

He says it will be years before evey dwelling in the two boroughs is inspected.

Residents will have notification before dwellings are inspected, according to Melvin.

Conditions attached to money from federal sources mandates housing inspection within the two boroughs, Melvin said.

Two major projects — Stroudsburg's Stofflet Street program and Courtland Plaza in East Stroudsburg — have federal financial connections.

If inspections are not carried out, the possibility of canceled aid exists, Melvin said.

"Every month I have to make a report out and send it to federal officials," Melvin said. "Up to now, I have been answering only complaint calls and inspecting where permits are issued. With the new man working, we should be able to send in a more complete report."

The joint codes enforcement office operates under the BOCA (Building Officials and Code Administrators) Basic Housing Code.

Inspections are carried out in accordance to the regulations. The inspector has a detailed 28-point check list to go through.

"Basically, we inspect dwellings for structural soundness and compliance of ordinance requirements," Melvin said.

"After all, its for the protection of the landowner and tenant that we inspect," Melvin asserted.

"Besides, the intent of the ordinance is also to bring housing up to and keep it at minimum substinance levels," he said.

"There have been rumors going around that we were out to bankrupt people whose dwellings can't meet standards.

"That is very definitely not the case!" he declared.

"When we find a person having a sub-standard property needing a lot of repairs to meet the requirements, I usually try to sit down with the owner and help him make a plan for upgrading the property.

Melvin said a plan of action is formed, with the most important work relative to occupants' safety done soon.

Other required changes will be scheduled on a basis to allow tentents to live without fear of drastic rent hikes and landlords without worry of citation.

Melvin said the procedure is already begin done with good results.

He said he hopes to avoid the controversy the housing code had when first adopted. Plans are being formulated for legal advertisements advising residents of upcoming inspections.

Q. In December, I had aluminum siding put on my house by Direct Aluminum Products in Snydersville. When they were finished, I noticed a few things they hadn't done. The spouting, for example, was put in wrong, the siding was extended too far, blocking the door, the painting wasn't finished, plus other things. I paid the $2,230 bill in full because I was promised these things would be fixed. Yet six months later and after numerous visits to their office, I'm still getting the same story — they will be out to fix these things.

E.A., Effort

A. That's the story we got too. Plus another. Owner G. E. Rapp said the items would be straightened out when the man — one of 38 employes — who performed the work "gets done with a job in Jersey." But Rapp claimed work was done to contract specifics and called the job "beautiful," said "there's no reason for alarm." We're not "siding" with either of you. But the Bureau of Consumer Protection can if you're convinced you're correct. Write them at 133 N. Fifth St., Allentown, phone 215-821-0901.

A. Write Pocono State Fair, Box 116, Hazleton 18201. Or phone 717-454-2481. Tickets are four, five, six, seven and eight dollars.

Q. We bought a car from Chevelle Motors in Springdale, N.J. in September for $1,295. We've had nothing but trouble ever since. It just broke down again and is unable to be repaired. Among the many things wrong is a bent and twisted frame, and the motor mount kept breaking, causing the engine to rock. We've since had to buy another car, which we're paying $84.53 a month on, while the other is going to cost us $64 monthly for another 27 months. What advice can you give?

C.A.L., Mt. Bethel

A. Put your faith in truth, justice and the American way. Since you believe you got a case, we've already passed along Federal Trade Commission advice. They say the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs can handle it, and add a private attorney might be money well spent. Chevelle's owner, Dan Golden, contradicts your story. He says he's gone out of his way to satisfy you; claims he even paid "half or better" for the price of a valve job your car needed several months after purchase. We've given you names and addresses; you've said you'd carry the ball. Good luck.

Q. Could you find the address of a dog magazine called Afghan?

A.S., Stroudsburg R.D. 3

A. It's known as Our Afghan. Published by Weddle Publications, 22235 Parthenia St., Canoga Park, Calif. 91304. It's a monthly and costs $10 a year.

Garbage haulers request guarantee on investment

STROUDSBURG — Investors in a garbage compacting station being built in Hamilton Township asked the Monroe County General Authority Friday for an agreement guaranteeing their investment.

"What we want is a guarantee for 10 years that the county will stay off our backs," said Hermann Vollmer, architect of the plan.

The authority had endorsed the concept of a transfer station as an "alternative interim solution" to the garbage disposal problem facing the county. Landfills have been shut down and an October expiration date is approaching for the landfill serving most county residents.

Vollmer's attorney, George Royle, said "we have the feeling the authority is going to pull the rug out from under us."

Royle said he gathered the impression from statements made by Donald Gage, authority chairman, during one of a series of private meetings with governmental officials.

Gage said the Vollmer plan was an interim solution and the county would have a permanent solution in one or two years, Royle complained.

"If we are talking about only one or two years, there is no way we can amortize this investment," said Royle, referring to an initial $500,000 needed for the station and equipment.

The authority has maintained that the compacting station and system of transfering Monroe County garbage to a Northampton County landfill is a temporary solution.

Studies are now underway to locate a local landfill as a long range solution. One authority member hinted that results of the search are being returned.

The authority apparently is sifting through 10 possible sites for a Monroe County landfill.

Vollmer fears the possibility of an authority sponsored solution to the garbage problem before his corporation can recoup its investment in the transfer scheme.

The authority authorized solicitor John Pentz to design a contract with Royle to protect Vollmer.

Two possibilities discussed included making Vollmers' compactors an integral part of whatever permanent solution is reached by the authority or simply buying him out.

The attorneys are supposed to have an agreement drafted by July 10. In the meantime, Vollmer will continue construction of the transfer station.

The meeting was attended by Monroe County Commissioners Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis and William F. Quinn.

Summer school dean appointed

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Richard H. Luce has been named to the position of Dean of Summer Sessions and Continuing Education at East Stroudsburg State College.

According to Dr. Darrell Holmes, president of the college, Luce has been named to this new position effective July 1. In this role, Luce will be responsible for providing liaison services for both the undergraduate and graduate summer session programs at the college, conferences and workshops for various organizations and providing a more flexible and meaningful program for continuing education.

This position is designed to bring the resources of the college more available and in conformity to the needs of the community and region covered by ESSC.

Luce has served at East Stroudsburg since 1968 as Director of Admissions. He joined the college faculty in 1957 as an associate professor of physical education and has also served as a basketball coach and later as a supervisor of physical education student teachers.

Luce received the Doctor of Physical Education degree from Indiana University at Bloomington, the Master of Science degree from New York University and the undergraduate degree in health and physical education from East Stroudsburg State College.

Dr. Richard Luce

He has been active in many community activities including a two-year term as president of the Monroe County Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, as vice-president for recreation for the State Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, on the executive committee of that organization and as conference program chairman for that organization in 1969.

He has served as a member of the Board of Directors of the Monroe County Arthritis Association, the Monroe County Y.M.C.A. and as chairman and a member of the Board of Directors of the Keystone Heart Association and the Pennsylvania Heart Association.

Fire unit elects officers

NAZARETH — The Four-County Firemen's Assn., including Monroe and Pike Counties, elected officers for 1973-74 Friday at their convention in Nazareth.

Elected from Monroe County were: secretary of the association, Blaine M. Rice, Stroud Twp. Fire Co., and first vice president, Herman Meinhart, Acme Hose Co., East Stroudsburg.

From Pike County, John Rohner, Bushkill Fire Co., was named county vice president.

Other officers are: president, W. H. Fred Blank, Lehighton; second vice president, Kenneth Beegle, Bangor; third vice president, Thomas Shanfelt, Jim Thorpe; fourth vice president, Robert B. Moyer, TriClover; treasurer, Norman E. Benner, Lehighton; and trustee for five years, William Ballient, West Catasauqua.

The convention will end today with a parade beginning at 1:30 p.m. on North Street, Nazareth.

Fire extinguished

HENRYVILLE — Pocono Township Fire Co. doused a two to three acre blaze near Henry's Crossing Friday. The fire, which lasted for three hours, began at 7:30 p.m. State Crew 45 came to the aid of the Pocono Twp. firefighters.

Terrorist charge pending against Henryville man

STROUDSBURG — The case of George Leonhardt, 53, Henryville, charged with terroristic threat, was continued to June 20, on request of Frank "Skip" Miller, sprayer for Pocono Aerial Spray.

Leonhardt was arrested June 7 by state police for threatening to shoot at a Pocono Aerial Spray official.

Leonhardt allegedly told Eugene Benben, operating manager of the spray firm and two other persons at the Stroudsburg-Pocono Airport that he would use his 30.06 rifle and two clips of ammunition if Miller, treating Pocono Twp. for gypsy moths, flew over his home.

He also reportedly complained to the state police of the gypsy moth spraying.

When state police informed Miller of the threat, he filed charges with District Magistrate Earl Ammerman.

Although at that time, he said he would discontinue spraying in Pocono Township, the treatment has since been completed.

Miller also said he would stop spraying in Hamilton Twp. because of complaints by a state trooper at the Stroudsburg barracks.

However, all spraying contracted by Pocono Aerial except that in the Reeders area has been completed.

Leonhardt was charged with terroristic threat under a new act in the Commonwealth's Penal Code, which went into effect the day before he was arrested.

Land use consultant to be hired by county

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission will call a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to select a consultant for the county's open space and comprehensive land use plan.

The planners have two proposals so far, but are expecting a third quotation on the project before a decision is made.

Gilbert Associates of Reading have quoted a $114,000 price and Richard S. Cowan of Allentown tagged the project at $14,700 plus the cost of printing.

Anticipated is a quotation from Albright and Friel, a Philadelphia consulting firm presently working on a sewerage feasibility program for eastern Monroe County.

The land use plan is needed for two purposes — one short range and the other for the long range development of land in Monroe County.

The short-range program concerns needed data to implement a special open space tax assessment program for county property owners burdened by heavy taxes in the wake of a reassessment put in effect this year.

Long-range use of the plan would monitor land development in the county by illustrating physical aspects either conducive to or prohibitive of development.

Water rate hike asked

HARRISBURG — The Fairview Water Co. of Mount Pocono has asked the Public Utility Commission for an $850 annual rate hike for residential customers. The PUC is studying the proposal which the utility says would make rates more equitable and would produce extra revenue.

The company serves 279 residential customers. These customers are now charged on the basis of fixture use, but would be placed on a single flat rate under the proposal.

Suspect held for jury

MOUNT POCONO — Douglas Allen Oney, 23, Pocono Pines, was bound over to the Monroe County grand jury on a narcotics charge Friday in a hearing before District Magistrate Clara Pope, Mount Pocono.

Oney, charged along with two other Pocono Pines men with intent to manufacture a controlled substance, was remanded to Monroe County Jail in lieu of bail.

John F. Valinote, Jr., 19, charged along with Oney, will have a hearing before Pope June 21. He is free on $10,000 bail.

The third man, Peter Charles Mandra, 20, was bound over to the grand jury June 13. He is free on $10,500 bail.

Tobyhanna Township Police first arrested Mandra June 6 and then returned with search warrants for the other two suspects the same day.

Chappell wins two NCAA tennis crowns

By CHUCK FIERSON
Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — Ironman Bob Chappell survived a mental letdown in the second set Friday and came back to beat Dan Lambert, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, and win the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.'s College Division singles tennis title.

Two hours later he teamed with Glen Cripe to win the doubles title by beating teammates Greg Jablonski and Mike Fishbach, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Chappell, a junior at the University of California at Irvine, was second seeded in the 11th annual tournament at East Stroudsburg State College. Lambert, last year's runner-up, was top seeded.

Chappell's victory over the junior from California Polytechnical State University, plus an Anteaters victory in the doubles final, gave Cal Irvine a record 28 points for the team championship. It held the record of 25 set in 1970 and 1971.

Chappell relied mainly on a strong net game and overcame a powerful backhand by Lambert to gain the title.

With the first set tied, 1-1, Chappell broke Lambert's service, winning a love game. Both players held their service for the rest of the set, which Chapell won, 6-4. After the service break by Chappell, both players had little trouble winning their serves. Only the eighth game of the set went to deuce.

Both Chappell and Lambert, an architecture major with a 3.8 average, held their services for the first three games of the second set. The pair then broke each other's services with Lambert taking a 3-2 lead.

The sixth game went to deuce three times before Lambert won it on Chappell's serve. Lambert then overcame a Chappell advantage in the seventh game and took a 5-2 lead.

Chappell explained later he "lost his concentration" during the set. He said he "tried to relax and concentrate on basics." The pre-law student came back to win the next game, but dropped the final to tie the match.

Both players held their own services the first two games of the final set and then broke each other for a 2-2 deadlock. Chappell won on his own service for a 3-2 lead and then won a love game to open a 4-2 margin.

Chappell jumped out to a 30-love lead in the seventh game and went on to win and take a 5-2 lead.

The final game of the match went to deuce and then Lambert's advantage. But Lambert then double faulted twice to give Chappell the advantage. The game went back to deuce as Lambert put away a backhand at the net.

But Lambert then double faulted again. The game went back to deuce and Chappell won the next two points to clinch the title.

Chappell and Cripe, the 1971 runner-up, made a fine comeback in winning the doubles title. They lost the first set and trailed, 1-3, in the second.

One point in a long fifth game appeared to change the complexion of the match. Cripe had a shot roll on the top of the net and just fall over to keep his team from losing service again.

The successful, albeit lucky, save boosted Cripe's confidence who started finishing off net shots he was missing in the first set.

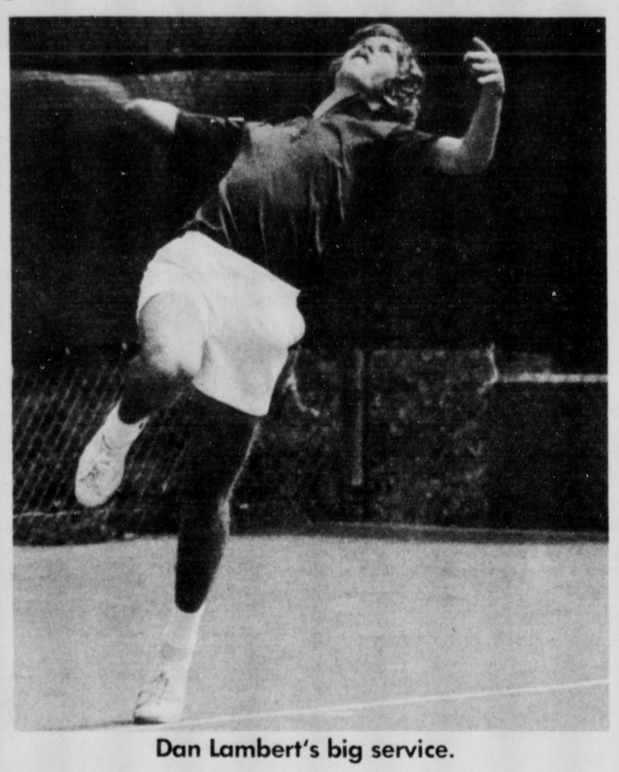
Meanwhile, Fishbach, who had been playing superbly with his two-hand smashes, began faltering and lost his composure. He first yelled at himself, then became annoyed about crowd noise and finally blasted a ball out of the court after a losing point.

Chappell and Cripe did not lose another service game the rest of the way. In fact, they never gave up more than one point on their own service in any game in the third set.

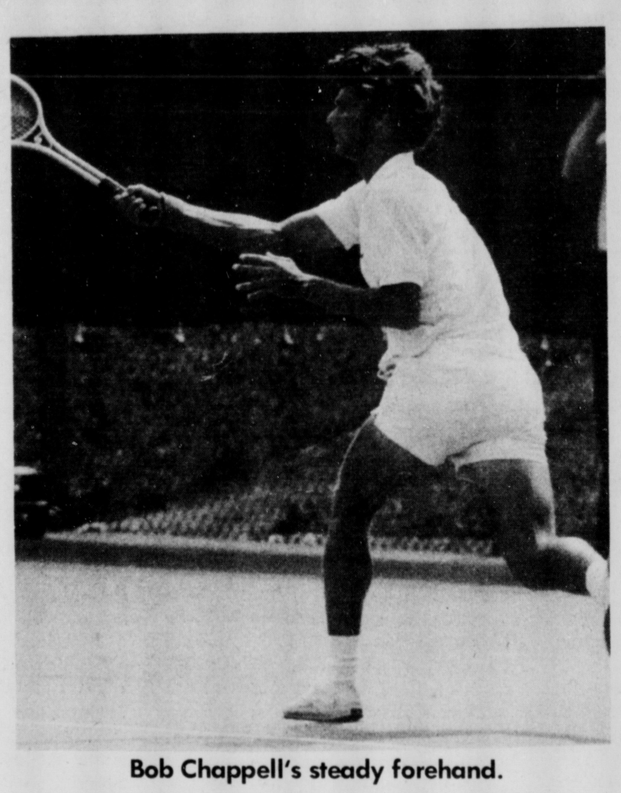
They broke Jablonski's service in the eighth game and Fishbach's in the tenth to win the second set. In the third, they broke Fishbach's service again in the fourth game and that was all they needed.

Although both teams were from the same school, it was the first time they had played each other this season. Cripe is a junior from Newport Beach, Calif.

Chappell is the first dual NCAA tennis champion since 1969 when Steve Messmer of California Northridge won both titles in the tournament also held at East Stroudsburg.



Dan Lambert's big service.



Bob Chappell's steady forehand.

Champ stayed with plan to win singles net title

BY CHUCK FIERSON
Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — When Bob Chappell awoke Friday morning, one of the first things he did was sit down with his coach and chart his plans for the day.

The planning session with Myron McNamara paid off for the junior at the University of California at Irvine as he won the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.'s College Division singles tennis championship.

Chappell, a pre-law major, beat top-seeded Dan Lambert of California Polytechnical State University, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

"My coach and I decided I must do three things," the Santa Barbara resident said. "He told me I must relax and hit the net on the service. We knew he had an extremely quick return.

"We also decided I must close the net on the return. If you give Dan a second shot, he'll put it away. And we also knew that I had to keep the pressure on him."

Chappell and Lambert are no strangers.

The pair live about 40 miles apart and competed in the same tennis league in high school. They played "two or three times" with Chappell winning. In fact, Chappell, who was second seeded in the tournament, never lost to Lambert. Chappell eliminated Lambert, 7-5, 6-3, in the 1971 tournament quarter-finals.

The pair didn't meet during the regular season this year, but Chappell admitted that he may have under-estimated his opponent.

"He volleyed a lot better than I thought he would," he continued. "I didn't think he was as quick as he is. He's a vastly improved player over 1971."

Besides trying to keep his record against Lambert intact, Chappell said he had another incentive to win the 11th annual tournament, the second which East Stroudsburg State College hosted.

"I figured he would be top seeded," Chappell explained. "In fact, I thought I'd be seeded behind Andy Rae."

Rae, the fourth seed from the University of San Diego, lost to Chappell, 3-6, 6-2, 7-6, in this year's semi-finals. Rae ousted Chappell in last year's quarter-finals, 6-4, 2-6, 7-6.

"I beat him during the regular season or otherwise I might have been. I was disappointed in not being top seeded, but it gave me added emphasis. I wanted to prove to myself and this tournament that I could win."

Chappell broke service in the first set and won, 6-4. But in the second set he quickly fell behind after a 1-1 tie and lost, 3-6.

"I tried to get off to a fast start in the second set," the new champion went on. "But he made some fine shots with his quick hands and plays. I just lost my concentration for a couple of games and he got on top.

"But after that I just tried to relax and concentrate on basics. When he had me, 5-2, I started to come back. After that I felt confident I would win."

Chappell, who admits he "would take a professional offer if it was right," will now enter the NCAA's University Division tournament which begins Monday at Princeton.

"The University Division is much tougher than this," he said. "But I feel I'm in there with anyone. I think I have a good chance to do well. At least I feel prepared."

Sicksers feel Shue fits; signs two-year contract

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former Baltimore Bullets mentor Gene Shue signed a two-year contract Friday to coach the Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association.

Shue, a 10-year guard in the NBA, resigned last week as coach of the Bullets after six and a half seasons, during which he led them to a 291-257 record and four divisional titles. He was coach of the year in 1966.

Shue said he had been negotiating with the 76ers, who last season established an NBA record for fewest victories with only nine in 82 games, since the end of May after his Baltimore contract expired.

"I had said all season long I wasn't sure I would be back with Baltimore," he said. "Since the end of May, I've talked with teams in both leagues, but only seriously with the 76ers."

Shue, who replaced player-coach Kevin Loughery, who quit the 76ers to take charge of the New York Nets in the rival American Basketball Association, was reported restless since the Bullets announced last year they were moving to Largo in the Washington, D. C., suburbs.

Calling the Philadelphia job "definitely a challenge," Shue said he would not have taken it "unless I felt the team could develop into a winner."

"In developing a team over a period of time, the coach could be more important than he would be moving in with a winner," Shue said.

McCovey's homer in 10th sends Giants past Phils

Bryant, 11-3, needed relief from Elias Sosa in the 10th after a homer by Greg Luzinski cut the Giants' lead to one run.

The Giants broke a scoreless tie in the seventh when Bobby Bonds hit his 16th home run of the year, ending a string of 24 scoreless innings for Wayne Twitchell.

The lead lasted only until the bottom of the inning when Mike Schmidt opened with a single, moved to second on Del Unser's sacrifice bunt and scored on a two-out double by Mike Anderson.

The Phils scored twice in the 10th with two out when Willie Montanez beat out an infield single and Luzinski homered.

Garrett's homer winner for Mets

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wayne Garrett's three-run home run in the eighth inning and Jon Matlack's six-hit pitching gave the New York Mets a 5-2 victory over San Diego Friday night and handed the Padres their seventh consecutive loss.

Garrett's homer, his fourth of the season, came on a 1-0 pitch by Steve Arlin after consecutive singles by John Milner and Ed Kranepool with one out. The blow enabled Matlack to pick up his fouuth victory of the season against eight losses and tagged Arlin with his fourth defeat.

Aaron just 24 shy of Ruth's record

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron closed to within 24 of Babe Ruth Friday night when he hit his 690th career home run to help Atlanta beat the Chicago Cubs, 8-3, for the Braves' ninth victory in the last 10 games.

Aaron's homer, to lead off a three-run fourth inning when the Braves took the lead for the first time, was his 17th of the season.

The Cubs scored all three of their runs in the first inning before an out was made with Billy Williams singling home one and Ron Santo singling home the other two.

Darrell Evans cut the gap to 3-1 in the bottom of the first with his 15th homer of the year and the Braves went ahead in the fourth, when, after Aaron's homer, Dave Johnson and Marty Perez both singled home runs.

The Braves scored four more in the sixth with five straight hits off reliever Dave LaRoche before an out was made.

Golf's the game

By Joe Miegoc, Record sports writer

Winners in the recent Jim Davision Cup tournament held at Pocono Farms Golf Club were Bill Nixon, Ron Wilson, Phyllis Driscole and Ed Hummel.

Runnersup in the mixed foursome tournament were Joe DeRoo, Frank Driscole, Phyllis Maday and Ruth Esposito.

Pocono Farms is one of the area's youngest golf courses, having been opened just two years ago, and is located in the Tobyhanna area of the Poconos.

Rich Millard, teaching professional at Glen Brook Country Club, has announced the dates for a clinic for junior golfers to be held this summer at the golf club.

The clinic, which is open to junior golfers from the ages of 10 to 18, will be held under Millard's supervision each Wednedday beginning June 27 and ending August 1.

Following the completion of the clinic in August, a two-day, 36-hole tournament will be held for those taking part in the instruction classes. The dates for the tournament are August 3 and August 4.

Anyone desiring additional information may call the Glen Brook pro shop at 421-3680.

Dave Hill's at it again and the U.S. Open is again his target.

If you remember two years ago, Hill let the Hazeltine, Minn. golf club have it for the conditions created especially for the Open. For that outburst, in which he said the course only needed "a few cows and some animals" to be a perfect pasture, Hill was hit with a $150 fine.

Thursday, he likened the course at Oakmont to driving the Indianapolis 500 with chuckholes in the track." Maybe he has a point.

Sure, the course the U.S. Open is played on should be very tough, but the guys who control these course make them impossible. For most of you who didn't know, Charlie Sifford his second shot on a par-four 12th hole 15 feet from the pin and proceeded to six-putt. Right, six-putt.

That's a tough course. Jack Nicklaus drove the 322-yard, par-four 17th on Thursday and made eagle, but only after deciding it was the best shot to try. He said after that the best place to approach the green from was the fairway bunker 110 yards from the green. What, no fairway?

Maybe they have to make the course tough, but not impossible. No wonder the pros complain about the toughness of the U.S. Open. The tournament is enough without having to play on greens as hard as the Pennsylvania Turnpike. On second thought, it might be easier to putt on the Turnpike.

Player holds onto lead in U.S. Open golf

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Gary Player kept his lead, although it dwindled to a single shot, and Jack Nicklaus edged closer, but a lot of others — including record-setting Gene Borek — got lucky in the U.S. Open Friday simply because someone forgot to turn off the faucets.

Oakmont Country Club's slick, killer greens finally were tamed — not necessarily by the players, but by an oversight — an unexpected, mechanical watering that left them easier to putt than anyone had dreamed.

The only problem was that no one knew about it in advance, but the soaking ordered by course superintendent Lou Scalzo left the greens soft and slow enough for early starters to produce sub-par scores in near-record numbers before the greens dried out in the afternoon.

Those who played in the morning when the greens were holding and were easier to putt got a big break, and all four leaders played early.

Player, who says he's going to quit if he wins another U.S. Open and Masters to join Nicklaus as the only two-time winner of all four major titles, added a one-under-par 70 to his first round 67 for a 137 total.

Longshot Jim Colbert was next after a 68 for 138.

Three late birdies enabled defending champion Jack Nicklaus to shoot a 69 for a two-under-par 140 total, where he was tied with Bob Charles, the only lefthander ever to win a major championship, and Johnny Miller, who both also had 69s Friday.

There was an impressive group of even-par 142 shooters including three who have won five U. S. Open titles among them —Arnold Palmer, who had a second straight 71, Lee Trevino, who slumped to 72 and went out hunting for a new putter, and Julius Boros, one of the early guys, who had 69.

Also at 142 were Borek, a Long Island club pro who got into the Open only as an alternate because Dave Hill withdrew Tuesday, and made six birdies in a six-under-par 65 that wiped out Jimmy Clark's 20-year-old course record of 66, and Tom Weiskopf, who had a morning 69.

Lanny Wadkins, who also had a 69, was at 143 in a group that included Bert Yancey and Ray Floyd and Jerry Heard, a 70 shooter in the morning, headed a group at 144, seven shots off the lead.

Some others who aren't particularly contenders at this point also took advantage of the eased-up morning scoring conditions, like Buddy Allin and Forrest Fezler, who both played early and shot 67 and 69, respectively.

There have been four previous U.S. Opens played at Oakmont and nearly a dozen other national championships of one sort or another, and if there is some question over how a nobody like Borek can break the course record, the answer could well lie in a mistake.

The man who made it was Scalzo, who Thursday night told USGA officials he thought the greens needed five minutes of watering to keep them in shape.

But when Frank Tatum, the official who helps decide things like pin placements, reported to assistant USGA director Frank Hannigan Friday morning, he said, "There's too much water on the greens."

Miller later joked, "There was casual water on the sixth green," but P.J. Boatwright, the executive director of the USGA, and Scalzo didn't see the humor in it.

"He (Scalzo) told us yesterday (Thursday) the course needed five minutes of water to keep it firm," Boatwright said. "As far as I know, that's all it got."

But Scalzo, the man in the middle, refused to discuss why the greens were wetter than they were supposed to be.

"Let's just say the greens were watered and let it go at that," Scalzo said. "Some water was put on the greens."

He said the putting surfaces were "always watered for five minutes each night," but refused to discuss the matter further.

Players in the field have been critical of the Oakmont greens all week long because they think they are too hard.

USGA justs listens, laughs at charges brought by Hill

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — The U.S. Golf Association just listened . . . and laughed.

Dave Hill's latest critique on the general architecture of a U.S. Open course was greeted with only a wry smile by USGA officials who have heard it all before.

Told that Hill, who withdrew from the tournament after playing only four practice holes, had said the USGA makes courses so unfair it's "like digging chuckholes at the Indianapolis 500," assistant director Frank Hannigan of the USGA said he wasn't upset.

"If it was a lot of people, it would (get me upset)," Hannigan said, nodding knowingly that it wasn't the first time and probably not the last that Hill is unhappy.

"I get the feeling there's been more favorable reaction to this course than most Open courses," Hannigan said.

"Most players accept what we're trying to do with the course preparation."

Hannigan said the USGA's policy in setting up a course for the Open was simple —"We put a great premium on accuracy.

"The only way we know to do this is a negative way —to penalize inaccuracy by making the course tight and making it very severe when you miss the fairway."

Hannigan pointed out that the great golfers like Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer "probably would have won even more than they did if they played on courses like this every week."

Lee Trevino, a two-time Open winner, also gave a hearty endorsement to the way the USGA sets up its courses.

"They make you play every club," Trevino said. "You have to place your drive. You have to place your second shot. You have to place the first putt. We play a lot of Philadelphia Classics and Atlanta Classics and Memphis Classics but we only play one U.S. Open a year."

Charles to quit tour in America

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Lefty Bob Charles has had it with the American golf tour for this year.

The 37-year-old toothpick-thin New Zealander is still up there in the running for this U.S. Open title with his two-under-par 140 after Friday's second round 69, but he says he's quitting the U.S. tour.

"Oh, I may play one more tournament here this year, and that'll be it," said the 1963 British Open titlist and only lefthander in golf history ever to win a major championship.

"Why? For a lot of reasons. It would take too long to list them all," said Charles upon being asked why he was leaving.

"It's too tough out there. Too many young kids who can hit 300 yards and beat the hell out of the ball. I used to be able to do that myself, but it doesn't work anymore."

Charles can't see why so much fuss is made over the fact he plays left-handed.

"Some of your best tennis players are left-handed," he said following Friday's round. "I don't know too much about baseball, but it seems to me some of the best hitters are left-handers."

Reds gain early margin in N.L. all-star balloting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Catcher Johnny Bench, second baseman Joe Morgan and outfielder Pete Rose give the Cincinnati Reds the lead at three of the positions in the early fan voting to determine the National League's All-Star team.

Bench, the league's Most Valuable Player last year, is the leading vote-getter thus far in the National League with 89,314 ballots of the 229,339 cast. The runnerup at the catching position is Manny Sanguillen of the Pittsburgh Pirates with 15,016 votes. Sanguillen is listed on the ballot as a catcher although he has been used as an outfielder this season.

Morgan has accumulated 48,128 votes to lead runnerup Glenn Beckert of the Chicago Cubs with 21,060, and Rose is the leading outfielder with 51,480 votes. Bobby Bonds of the San Francisco Giants is second in the outfield balloting with 38,248 votes and Cesar Cedeno of the Houston Astros is third with 38,023.

Leaders for the other positions are: Henry Aaron of the Atlanta Braves at first base with 64,405 votes; Ron Santo of Chicago at third base (33,922); and Chris Speier of San Francisco at shortstop (42,086).

The leaders in the American League voting were announced earlier this week and they include: Dick Allen, Chicago, first base; Cookie Rojas, Kansas City, second base; Brooks Robinson, Baltimore, third base; Fred Patek, Kansas City, shortstop; Carlton Fisk, Boston, catcher; and outfielders Reggie Jackson of Oakland, Amost Otis of Kansas City and Bobby Murcer of New York.

U.S. Open leader proves he's a man for all ages

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Gary Player, the U. S. Open leader, already had obliged one and all.

He had answered every single question put to him, frequently in minute detail, and now he was walking out of the press tent covered here by a carnival-like peppermint-striped canvas.

Player was on his way to a nice cold shower in the locker room Friday when, with a number of admirers, autograph seekers and media people still milling around him, it was brought to his attention he had unwittingly disappointed some ladies.

"Which ladies?" Player wrinkled his brow.

"The little old gray-haired ladies from the Presbyterian Home for the Aged," said the individual who had originally brought the matter to his attention.

"The home is right at the entrance of the golf course. Now with the Open going on, there hasn't been so much excitement there in years. Jim Gaquin of the USGA felt it would be a nice thing to have some of the ladies out here, John Price of Oakmont worked out the details, and they were coming in as you walked out. They were so disappointed about missing you."

Gary Player immediately turned around.

"Where are they now?" he asked.

"Somebody's showing them the communications' set-up back of the tent," the man said. "They had come over here hoping to see one of the golfers, but there aren't any in the interview area now, and pretty soon the women will have to go back to the Home. Most of 'em are between 80 and 100, you know, and don't have that much energy, especially in all this heat."

Player already was walking toward the back of the tent.

Nine ladies and two men from the Home were standing in the area when the little South African professional arrived, and you should have seen how they all beamed when they recognized the man leading the U.S. Open.

Gary Player removed his cap.

One by one, he greeted each of the old ladies personally, and the two men also. He shook the hand of each and chatted with them all.

"He is a pretty good scout, isn't he?" said one of the ladies.

"Imagine him taking time to come back and visit with us," said Mrs. Virginia Beecher, program director for the Home. "After all, we're just a bunch of old so-and-so's, and we've been watching all the excitement here from our windows all week, but never dreamed we'd ever have an opportunity to meet any of the golfers personally."

Miss Bourassa takes LPGA lead

MONTREAL (UPI) — Jocelyne Bourassa, playing under tremendous pressure before her home town fans, fired a five under par 68 Friday to take a two stroke lead after the opening round of the La Canadienne Golf Championship.

Miss Bourassa, the Ladies Professional Golf Association rookie of the year in 1972, after bogeying the 14th hole, came back strong and birdied the final four holes on the windswept Montreal Municipal Course.

Her 68 gave Miss Bourassa a two stroke lead over Renee Powell and Mary Horner, both with three under par 70's. In fourth position with 71's were five others, Carol Mann, Sandra Haynie, Judy Rankin, Betsy Rawls and Etsuko Nakamura of Japan.

Miss Powell, of Canton, Ohio, was the clubhouse leader until Miss Bourassa got off the course. She birdied the second, 10th, 11th and 12th and did not three putt any of the greens.

"I was a little numb at the beginning from the wind and cold weather, but I warmed up a little later, and put my shots where I wanted them," said Miss Powell.

Miss Mann, who shot a 71 to stay in the running for the $10,000 first prize money, hit the green only 12 times all day but "my chipping and putting kept me in there."

"Everything was easy today," said a happy Miss Bourassa after her birdie on the 18th. "I just tried to play my shots one at a time and to concentrate on what I was going to do and not what I had done before." Miss Bourassa's father followed her around the course giving her advice and telling her to remain calm.

It was the first time back home for Miss Bourassa since she turned pro last year.

Nixon gains time to help economy

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Nixon clamped a 60-day freeze on most prices this week in order to gain time to draft a Phase 4 economic program. But he did not freeze wages or basic food prices at the farm.

If the President expected a favorable reaction, he must have been greatly disappointed. Hardly anyone had a kind word for the freeze or for the televised speech in which he announced it. The stock market sold off sharply Thursday following the speech and was lower on the week. The dollar plunged to a new low on the European money markets. Most foreign reaction was unfavorable.

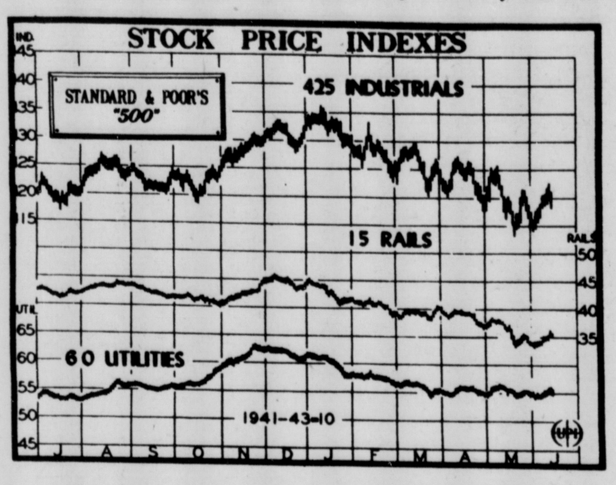
Labor, not having its wages frozen, was least critical. The top managements of General Motors and Sears Roebuck depolored the freeze. Sears Chairman Arthur Wood said it would cause 60 days of unnecessary uncertainty for business.

Economists in Wall Street and for the big banks for the most part dismissed the freeze as a holding action. The ebullient Eliot Janeway called it "John Wayne economics — too little, too too late, too political and too gimmicky." Economist Alan Greenspan said it was a "high risk policy," that it could crush the inflation bubble temporarily but posed the danger of black markets followed by accelerated inflation when the freeze is lifted.

Since the President froze prices on the basis of those prevailing in the first eight days of June, hundreds of price increases announced in the past week had to be rolled back.

Large farm groups predicted food prices would continue to rise in spite of the freeze. Among the boosts that had to be rolled back was a number announced by copper producers.

The worsening summer gasoline shortage caused the President to include gasoline in the price freeze. Many persisted in believing the big oil companies were creating the motor fuel shortage artificially in order to boost prices and squeeze independents. The state of Florida prepared to sue major oil companies on such charges. Florida's tourists business depends on motor travel and state officials apparently were eager to believe the energy crisis is phony.



Freeze lowers stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fears that the 60-day price freeze ordered by the President will severely cut into corporate profits, and eventually lead to worsened inflation, forced stocks sharply lower in slow trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average sagged 14.37 to 888.55. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index tumbled 1.30 to 105.10. The average price of a NYSE common share lost 47 cents.

The list was hit hard, with 1,101 declining issues, and only 316 advances, among 1,737 traded.

The action was slow, as turnover came to only 11,970,000 shares, compared with 13,210,000 shares Thursday. Alan Shaw of Harris, Upham said the market is generally unsatisfied with the President's new economic game plan, and investors would stay with the sidelines until some tougher plan is arrived at. "Everyone here expected Phase IV, and got only Phase III ½."

Analysts said many investors, and members of the business community, are worried about the effect of the freeze on corporate earnings. Many companies, and entire industries such as steel and copper, have been forced to reconsider or defer previously planned price hikes. Another uncertainty on Wall Street —more vague but possibly more destructive to stock price —is the question of what Nixon intends to do about inflation after the 60-day freeze ends. Several analysts predict a corporate rush to boost prices as rapidly as the law permits.

Bethlehem Steel was the volume leader, and dropped ⅝ to 27¾ on 208,200 shares, including a 190,200-share block at 28⅛. Chairman Stewart Cort said Friday "We are disappointed that we will not be able to put the proposed modest and inadequate steel prce increases into effect as scheduled."

Armco Steel fell 1. Other steel issues moved fractionally lower. Motors and aircrafts weakened slightly, and rails were mixed.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange fell in very slow trading. The Amex index dipped 0.08 to 22.56. Volume totaled 1,850,000 shares, compared with 2,120,000 shares on Thursday.

Park director fears Watergate spill-over

By MONROE W. KARMIN
Dow Jones - Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — In two short years, Ronald H. Walker rose from being an obscure West Coast salesman to a job close to the seat of national power in the White House. Now he's hunkered down at the National Park Service, bewildered and scared.

With the Senate's Watergate investigation being televised, with newspapers reporting disclosures almost daily, the new Park Service Director knows he's vulnerable to ruin — though he apparently has committed no indiscretion worse than serving a three-year hitch as President Nixon's special assistant for travel.

"With so many people talking now," Walker says forlornly, "it's like a growing octopus. If somebody mentions my name, and it makes a headline, I'm dead." The 35-year-old political handyman feels he doesn't deserve to die because in his White House job he really was "a very little guy, very behind-the-scenes."

Indeed, Walker emphasizes that he really wasn't around the White House much at all. "I was responsible for the President's travel arrangements," he explains anxiously, "and the record will show that the President traveled a great deal, and so did I." Moreover: "I'd like to make it clear that I had no knowledge of, and definitely no participation in, any aspect of the Watergate activities now under investigation."

Nonetheless, the revelations are having their effect upon him. During an interview with a reporter, Walker perspires heavily and squirms uneasily. He stumbles over words, and he gestures erratically. But when he mentions Watergate his hands come together as if in prayer. As the visitor prepares to depart, the Park Service director consecrates the meeting by declaring, "God bless you, sir."

Far-reaching effect

Walker's anxiety is an extreme case of the affliction that has gripped former White House officials and former workers for the Committee to Re-Elect the President who now hold post-election jobs in various departments and agencies.

Though big names and nonentities implicated in the scandal have had to quit such jobs, those uninvolved remain in office. They range in rank up to Interior Under Secretary John Whitaker, formerly an aide to John Ehrlichman at the White House. They're doing their jobs as best they can, and many of them display nonchalance. But they know they'll have to share the Watergate imprint for some time to come. They recognize that their past service, once a badge of respect, has become a symbol of disgrace.

"That's one of the many tragedies," laments Alexander Butterfield, now the Federal Aviation Administrator after four years as a special assistant to H.R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff who resigned under fire. Butterfield says he had no involvement with Watergate, but he concedes the scandal is affecting his life.

As the disclosures began cascading into the public prints, the Butterfield children (two of the three are away at college) communicated their concerns. Mrs. Butterfield reassured them: "your father has done nothing dishonest or unethical and has nothing to fear, and neither do you."

Butterfield has been forced by circumstances to convey the same sentiments to his boss, Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar, and his colleagues at the FAA. But the issue keeps cropping up, in questions asked at press conferences and in other ways.

Edward D. Failor, a re-election committee worker who became the Commerce Department's statistical chief, has gone further than most to proclaim his innocence to his superior. When Secretary Frederick Dent wanted to know about Watergate, "I assured him I wasn't involved in anything illegal or immoral," the ex-CRP official relates. "I told him I'm prepared to take a lie detector test, or sodium pentothal, or whatever."

Avoiding taint is the primary goal of many Nixon loyalists now. One who prefers to remain anonymous says it was his dream since college in 1960 to help elect Nixon as President. Now, after the Watergate disclosures, he says with controlled bitterness:

"One thing these guys have done is to rob a lot of people of a great moment in their lives. There may come a day when I don't want to ever bring up that I was with the Committee to Re-Elect the President."

This man's mood ranges from deep depression to what might be called sick humor. "Sometimes I put on my seersucker suit with stripes and find myself singing an old Johnny Cash song called 'We Got Stripes,' " he says. "I call it my Jeb Magruder suit." Magruder is an implicated former CRP official.

"Say it ain't so, Jeb"

Robert H. Marik, now an Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, used to work for Magruder at the Committee to Re-Elect the President. Marik views his former superior's fall from grace as part of what he terms the "whole, colossal, sad disappointment that is Watergate."

"Say it ain't so, Jeb," Marik pleads of Magruder, a man whom he admired during the campaign as "a hardworking, competent manager."

Concern about harm to future careers is widespread. Frank Herringer, the Urban Mass Transit Administrator who left a New York management-consultant firm in 1971 to take a White House job, is one who's wondering.

"I've built my career year-by-year," he recalls, "and to my way of thinking, I've made very few bad steps . . . until two months ago, to have been a member of the White House staff serving the President was something of which I was proud, and people respected it. Now that isn't the case. I gave a speech in San Francisco recently. I was introduced as a member of the White House staff, and you could see the knowing smiles. It was uncomfortable."

Senate panel also doused by publicity in W'gate

By JOHN PIERSON
Dow Jones - Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — It started out like a simple, old-fashioned lynching of Richard Nixon.

But before they knew it, old Sam Ervin was beginning to feel a bit tingly around the neck himself, Joe Montoya had a nasty black eye, and Dan Inouye could see little in it for his own future but mischief.

Howard Baker, on the other hand, just might come out of it with Richard Nixon's old job, while Lowell Weicker and Ed Gurney have been helped a lot with the home folks.

And Herman Talmadge may emerge with, quite literally, a headache.

So, having already changed the lives and fortunes of President Nixon and his most trusted aides, the Watergate affair rolls on, changing the lives and fortunes of the seven U.S. Senators who have been assigned to investigate the scandal. To wit:

— Sam J. Ervin, Jr., North Carolina Democrat, 76 years old, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities, one of the most respected men in the Senate and by Nixon's own admission, "a great Constitutional lawyer."

Ervin is up for re-election next year, and until he took over the Watergate committee, he seemed sure of winning a fifth term with his bible-quoting, country-boy ways.

Now he has received threats against his life, and the mail from home is blowing chilly. A lot of his constituents think he's leading a witch hunt against the President. "This job certainly is not something to get him re-elected," says Hall Smith, the senator's press secretary. "As a matter of fact, it could be harmful." A younger Democrat, 51-year-old Henry H. Wilson, Jr., who was a Kennedy-Johnson White House aide, has already announced he will challenge Sen. Ervin in next year's primary.

— Howard H. Baker Jr., Tennessee Republican, vice chairman of the Select Committee, young (47), smart, good-looking, moderate. Until Watergate, he was known best as Ev Dirksen's son-in-law," for his marriage to the daughter of the Senate's late minority leader.

Now with the TV lens on him six hours a day three days a week, those good looks are beginning to get to the women out there in television land. He's one of "the studliest of them all," according to Women's Wear Daily. Even the men seem impressed with his ability to walk the thin line between being a loyal Republican and asking tough questions of the Watergate gang. Fan mail is pouring in, and, to a Baker staff man, the Senator has become "the deadlock candidate at the '76 convention."

— Herman E. Talmadge, Georgia Democrat, an astute behind-the-scenes operator, one of that shrinking band of Southern barons that has quietly ruled the Senate for decades. He is said to regard his service on the Watergate committee as a waste of time, even a bore.

But there are no signs that it's affecting his popularity back home or his chances for re-election in 1974. The bright lights in the committee room have given him a "burning sensation" in his eyes. That's the worst he's likely to get from the hearings.

— Edward J. Gurney, Florida Republican, the committee member most willing to take Nixon's side in public. At a recent hearing, for example, he questioned the truth of news reports that the White House was refusing to give the committee logs of meetings and telephone calls between the President and former White House Counsel John Dean.

For this he has drawn the scorn of some of the press but the apparent appreciation of Florida voters, to whom he'll be submitting himself again next year. "As of now, the hearings are probably the biggest plus I can think of," says Gurney. "The exposure is absolutely enormous, and the people of Florida think I'm doing a pretty good job."

NOTICE
BOROUGH OF DELAWARE GAP

NOTICE is given that the Council of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap will hold a meeting at Town Hall, Delaware Water Gap, Pennsylvania, at 7:30 p.m., on Monday, July 2, 1973, at which time a public meeting will be held for the consideration by the Council of the proposed Ordinance hereinafter set forth verbatim:

ORDINANCE NO.

AN ORDINANCE TO PROHIBIT THE ACCUMULATION OR MAINTENANCE OF UNLICENSED MOTOR VEHICLES AND MOTOR VEHICLES NOT CURRENTLY INSPECTED AND PARTS THEREOF EXCEPT WITHIN SPECIFIED DISTRICTS AND PURSUANT TO OTHER ENUMERATED STANDARDS; AND TO PROVIDE PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION AND PROCEDURES FOR THE REMOVAL THEREOF IN THE BOROUGH OF DELAWARE WATER GAP, PENNSYLVANIA.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap, and it is hereby ordained by the authority of the same:

Section 1. It is hereby declared unlawful for any person, corporation or other legal entity owning or having any interest in real estate situate within the Borough of Delaware Water Gap to accumulate, maintain or allow to be maintained thereon any unlicensed motor vehicle or motor vehicle not currently inspected as provided by the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code, hereinafter referred to as "inoperable motor vehicle" except within the Zone designated as M-1 of the Zoning Ordinance of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap, Ordinance No. 142, hereinafter referred to as "Zoning Ordinance", unless the same be maintained in one of the manners hereinafter set forth:

Section 1(a). WITHIN AN ENCLOSED STRUCTURE.

An inoperable motor vehicle may be stored within an enclosed structure provided that the same is placed wholly within said structure and is not visible to or accessible by the public.

Section 1(b). WITHIN THE ZONES DESIGNATED AS C-1 AND C-2: FOR THE PURPOSE OF REPAIR OR SALVAGE.

An inoperable motor vehicle may be stored within the Zones designated as C-1 and C-2 of the Zoning Ordinance for repair and salvage purposes, as conducted in accordance with Paragraph 5.505(a) of the Zoning Ordinance. Not more than four (4) inoperable motor vehicles shall be stored at any one time and no inoperable motor vehicle shall remain on said premises for a period exceeding sixty (60) days. No inoperable motor vehicle may be maintained in a hazardous condition and no protruding or otherwise unsafe surfaces and parts thereof shall be allowed to remain on said vehicles for a period in excess of forty-eight (48) hours from the date of commencement of storage. All inoperable motor vehicles shall be locked.

Section 1(c). WITHIN THE ZONES DESIGNATED AS C-1 AND C-2: FOR THE PURPOSE OF SALE.

A new or used inoperable motor vehicle may be stored within the Zones designated as C-1 or C-2 by the Zoning Ordinance provided that same be maintained in such condition as to satisfy the requirements of the inspection provision of the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code. A used inoperable motor vehicle stored for the purpose of sale to which repairs are to be made prior to sale shall be stored for the purposes of this Section and not for the purposes of or shall be considered to be stored pursuant to this Section and nor the purposes of repair or salvage, provided the same shall be placed in such condition as to satisfy the requirement of the inspection provisions of the Pennsylvania Motor Vehicle Code as to the exterior of the vehicle within twenty-four (24) hours.

Section 2. WITHIN THE ZONE DESIGNATED AS M-1.

All other inoperable motor vehicles shall be stored within the Zone designated as M-1 by the Zoning Ordinance.

Section 2(a). Such storage place shall be set back a minimum distance of one hundred fifty (150) feet from the right-of-way lines on all streets or roads and a minimum distance of fifty (50) feet from all other property lines. The area between the setback line and the right-of-way line and all streets and roads and all other property lines shall at all times be kept clear and vacant of inoperable motor vehicles.

Section 2(b). Such storage place shall be landscaped by trees or shubbery that is of sufficient height and density so as to enclose said motor vehicles from view of the public.

Section 2(c). Such storage place shall be used for residential purposes.

Section 2(d). No garbage or other organic waste shall be stored on such storage place.

Section 2(e). No inoperable motor vehicles shall be stacked, placed one on the other or stored vertically.

Section 2(f). No inoperable motor vehicle or other substance shall be burned at such storage place.

Section 3. REMOVAL OF FUEL.

Whenever any inoperable motor vehicle shall be stored all fuel shall be drained and removed therefrom except the provisions of this Section shall not apply to the storage of an inoperable motor vehicle stored pursuant to Section 1(c).

Section 4. INVALIDITY.

The invalidity of any Section, provision or portion of this Ordinance shall not invalidate or affect the validity of any other Section, provision or remaining portion hereof.

Section 5. INCONSISTENT ORDINANCES.

Ordinances in force on the date this Ordinance shall take effect and inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed except that the provisions of the Zoning Ordinance are expressly made applicable to this Ordinance except as inconsistent herewith.

Section 6. PENALTIES AND PROCEDURES FOR THE REMOVAL OF INOPERABLE MOTOR VEHICLES STORED IN VIOLATION OF THIS ORDINANCE.

Section 6(a). Any inoperable motor vehicles stored in violation of this Ordinance coming to the attention of the Mayor, Council of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap or Police Chief of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap shall be corrected by the person, corporation or other legal entity having control or ownership over said premises and notice of the violation shall be given to said person in control of said premises by the Chief of Police of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap by personal service or by certified mail, return receipt requested, deliver to addressee only. In the event that neither personal service or service by certified mail marked as aforesaid cannot be effected, then upon affidavit thereof by the party attempting service, notice shall be given by posting the premises upon which the inoperable motor vehicle is stored with notice as hereinafter set forth.

Section 6(b). Notice shall be sufficient to advise the person, firm or corporation having control or ownership over said premises of the precise nature of the violation and the provision of this Ordinance alleged to have been violated.

Section 6(c). In the event that an inoperable motor vehicle stored in violation of this Ordinance is not removed or otherwise placed in conformity with this Ordinance within ten (10) days after service of said notice as hereinabove set forth, summary proceedings may be instituted before any Justice of the Peace for the violation of this Ordinance and after notice given is required in the case of Summary Offenses and following hearing for said Justices of the Peace, any person, corporation or other legal entity in violation of the provisions of this Ordinance shall upon conviction thereof be subject to a fine not exceeding Two Hundred and 00-100 ($200.00) Dollars, together with costs, and upon failure to pay the fine and costs within the period set by the Justice of the Peace, not to exceed one (1) year, shall undergo imprisonment in the County Jail for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days. Subsequent to a conviction for violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance, storage of the same inoperable motor vehicle in violation of this Ordinance shall constitute the basis for a second or a successive conviction.

Section 7. PROCEDURE FOR REMOVAL.

Upon the failure of the person, corporation or other legal entity, storing said inoperable motor vehicle in violation of this Ordinance within thirty (30) days of conviction to correct or remove said inoperable motor vehicle, the Mayor or Council of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap may cause such inoperable motor vehicle to be removed and stored in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance and the cost of said removal and storage, together with a sum equal to twenty (20 per cent) per cent of said cost shall be assessed upon the premises upon which said motor vehicle was stored and shall constitute a lien upon said motor vehicle, which cost may be assessed and collected in the manner provided by law for the collection of municipal claims and liens by an Action of Assumpsit, or by whatever other manner Council may deem expedient.

ENACTED INTO AN ORDINANCE AND PASSED AT THE BOROUGH OF DELAWARE WATER GAP, THIS DAY OF , 1973.

Borough of Delaware Water Gap:
By: John Wilson, Jr., President
Francis R. Drake, Mayor

Attest:

IN MEMORY OF OUR DAD and PAPPY, MALVIN (Johnny) LaBAR, who passed away 5 years ago today, June 16.
We so often wonder why,
our dear, kind and gentle loved one,
had to be taken away so soon.
While the cold hearted and wicked can live and flourish.

The Gorged Gourmand

Waddling connoisseur visits Pocono area

Visitors at the Sheraton Pocono Inn's "Three Fathoms" dining room begin to feast on a "Flaming Paradise Island Delight." The dish is a combination of lobster, chicken and a cream sauce served in a flaming pineapple.

STROUDSBURG — After years of waddling throughout the world in search of fine cuisine and appetizing delicacies, I have finally concluded there is absolutely no truth to the saying, "What is food to one man may be another man's poison."

As a slightly overweight connoisseur of palatable dishes (360 pounds), I strongly maintain that anything edible is also desirable, delectable and usually delicious.

The reader should not be too quick to discredit this culinary expertise, since my background in the search for exquisite menus is rather extensive.

I have spent years traveling to the furthest reaches of the globe — from the darkest jungles of Africa to the frozen wastelands of Antarctica — in search of a free meal. Fortunately, I never became famished for an instant during my weary wanderings.

Pygmy delicacy

I remember one thrilling adventure when I stopped at a pygmy plantation somewhere in Africa and was treated to a succulent boar roasted on an open spit. How can I begin to explain how that wild pig tasted after having gone without food for at least 30 minutes?

I vaguely recall earlier in the day I was nearly starving, so I cooked my guide. The poor fellow was rather scrawny and could not begin to compare with the infinitely better tasting boar.

However, the reader should not get the impression I am an overindulgent hog. I distinctly remember one time while riding a dehydrated camel across the hot, dusty sands of the Gobi Desert; all I had to eat for a period of 24 hours was one dried fig and two withered prunes.

It was almost unbearable, but I survived. Happily, I was able to stumble upon an oasis, where a feast was mysteriously awaiting me.

Needless to say, I digress from the main point of my article, which is to use my expertise to inform Pocono visitors of the unique dining facilities located in the area.

Each week this column will recommend a few places where individuals or families can grab a quick bite or happily gorge themselves.

Let me begin by describing where I might eat on an average day. Normally, I would skip breakfast because I sleep late, and begin my feasting as soon as the "House of Ming" opens its doors at noon.

The "House of Ming", owned and opeated by Allan Ming, is located at the top of Foxtown Hill on Rte 611 just outside of Stroudsburg.

Ming personally supervises the kitchen and features such well-known Cantonese dishes as Sarm Gop Ti — $4.95, which is fresh chicken, roast pork, shrimp, all flavored with peapods waterchestnuts, bamboo shoots and Chinese imported mushrooms.

Other Chinese combination dishes include Subgum Wonton — $4.95 and Lichee Chicken — $5.50. The restaurant also offers such lobster and shrimp dishes as Butterfly Shrimp — $4.25, Lobster Ding — $4.10 and Loong Hai Gai Kew — $5.75.

Nostalgia enters market

By BEATRICE GARFIELD

We thank our readers for their very nice letters. We wish we could answer you all personally! We shall, however, reply to questions in the column whenever space permits and providing the questions are of general interest. Regarding appraisals and authentications of antiques we suggest that you get in touch with some of the local dealers.

An example of an antique carved wooden cookie mold, in the form of a country fiddler. Forms for making molded edible cakes are popular collectibles — particularly examples which reveal fine details in the carving.
(Pfister Collection, Orange County)

Q. We have recently started a small antiques business and are overwhelmed by the endless variety of merchandise we find in other shops. We would like to specialize in the currently-wanted items. Could you offer us any suggestions?

A. In view of the prevailing antiques boom it appears that there's a market for practically everything! To a certain extent, however, the locale of operation plays a part. In certain geographical areas the sophisticated artistic productions — Art Nouveau furniture, French cameo glass, European bronzes, antiques jewelry, Art Pottery, 19th and 20th century paintings — are extremely popular. In other areas traditional antiques of connoisseur quality are preferred by the collectors. Here the 18th and 19th century American furniture, pewter, blown-mold glass, primitives, Shaker furniture, early Staffordshire pottery, woven coverts and stonewares are in great demand.

The age of your clients is also a factor. In recent years great numbers of young people — many still in their teens have been bitten by the collecting bug. If the majority of your customers are these youthful collectors, be sure to stock Depression glass, oak furniture, Indian jewelry and craft items, early children's books, old bottles and all sorts of nostalgic and obsolete collectibles, like Mickey Mouse, Howdy Doody and even Beatles posters!

Attend local auctions, speak to other dealers in the community and try to meet as many collectors as you can, in order to ascertain prevailing tastes.

You'll learn by trial and error, of course, but oh, what a costly way! Proceed slowly until you get the "feel" of the market.

We always advise dealers to sepcialize in the categories which they know best. And thre's an important reason for that. In view of the many reproductions and, indeed, outright fakes, which are

'Sandie's Subs' is home of 'Big Deihl'

Of course, Ming has his famous Pu Pu Platter and an assortment of chow meins, chop sueys and Cantonese soups varying in price from 50 cents to $4.25. If you are like me, all these dishes together would make a most satisfactory lunch. However, if you are a skimpy eater, one of these delectable meals would be quite sufficient.

The "House of Ming" is open weekdays from 12 noon to 10:30 p.m. — on Saturdays from 12 noon to 11:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 12 noon to 9:30 p.m.

After eating a hearty lunch at the "House of Ming", I might feel my next sharp pang of hunger around 2 p.m. "Sandie's Subs" on Rte. 611 in Stroud Township is a great place to ease those minor hunger pains.

"Sandie's" is owned by Sandy Deihl, who specializes in making 14 inch submarine sandwiches. She offers eleven different types of sandwiches, which range in price from 95 cents to $1.75 for a whole "sub", or from 50 cents to 90 cents for a half sandwich.

"The Big Deihl", a pun on Sandy's last name, is the specialty of the house. Sandy reports as of last Sunday, her establishment has sold 2,203 "Big Deihls" since her opening in March.

The "Big Deihl" consists of boiled ham, cappacola, cheese, cooked salami, tomatoes, lettuce, onions and optional peppers. The price of the "sub" is $1.55 and a half sandwich costs 80 cents.

After downing seven of Sandy's eleven sandwiches at one time, I might finally feel stuffed. Only when the clock strikes 5 p.m., reminding me of dinner, would my mouth begin to water for more and more food.

I would immediatley rush to "Varkony's Smorgasbord" on Rte. 209 in Saylorsburg. There is enough food here for a hungry regiment with a selection made to order for even the most picky eater.

A few of the many items weighing down "Varkony's" tables include lobster salad, potted chicken with sour cream gravy, Swedish meatballs, ravioli, cabbage rolls, German potato salad, lasagna and chicken croquets — plus an assortment of pickles, cheese and cold meats.

Capping the main meal are such desserts as Jello and whipped cream, rice pudding, German chocolate cake, cherry pie, cheese cake, fruit and brandied cherry sauce with bread pudding.

Fortunately, there is no limit on individual intake, and one can go back for seconds, thirds or even fourths!

"Varkony's", operated by Robert and Marie Malone, is open 5 to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 3 to 9 p.m. on Sunday.

After surfeiting myself at "Varkony's", I don't believe I would need any more food until the early evening hours. Then it's off to the Sheraton Pocono Inn's "Three Fathoms" dining room, where there is nightly entertainment, a friendly atmosphere and of course good food.

Perhaps, one of the more popular meals at the motel dining facility is the "Flaming Paradise Island Delight" — $8.50.

The "Flaming Paradise" is a unique dish of lobster, chicken and chunks of pineapple covered with mushrooms and a cream sauce, and placed in a flaming half of pineapple.

Other favorites include "Steak Diane" — $10.25, "Surf and Turf" — $12.95 and "Roast Pheasant for Two" — $19.50.

Show groups entertain nightly in the lounge area from 9:30 to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 7 to 10 p.m. Sunday.

The "Three Fathoms" serves dinner from 5 to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday — 5 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 to 9 p.m. Sunday. Lunches are scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

Editors Note: (Because of acute indigestion, the publication of the Gorged Gourmand's next column is still indefinite. Please be patient. Thank you.)

Kids knead dough

Quiet Valley know-how

By GERARD SUTHERLIN
Pocono Record Reporter

SNYDERSVILLE — The keynote of public school education for the past several years has been an effort to involve children actively with a diverse range of experiences outside of the traditional classroom setting.

This theory found pleasant application for 145 fifth graders from a Morris County, N.J. school recently on a field trip to Quiet Valley Farm, the 18th Century museum and restoration site in Hamilton Township.

"This is the fifth small group of 30 kids we have brought out in the past week for the two-day trip," said Principal Robert Kramer of the Stoneybrook School in Kinnelon, N.J.

Kramer said the class visited the farm museum for a tour on the first day of the field trip, then spent the night at Camp Brainard, where the chilildren did some pond studies for their science classes.

On the second day, the class returned to Quiet Valley Farm to observe and participate in what were daily farm chores in 1765 but are today fascinating adventures for the young people.

"I came here last year and took the tour, and I was so impressed that I thought it

Glowing rocks snare spotlight

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

CANADENSIS — Shut the door and the light stays on. So goes the ad for the ultimate refrigerator.

It's true at Pocono Mineral and Gem, although it's rocks instead of refrigerators that glow.

The rocks are fluorescent and placed in a replica of a cave built adjacent to the main showroom. Two years in the making, the cave will see its first summer this year.

Although not the most valuable minerals on display in the cave, designed by Herman Luber of Stroudsburg, the fluorescent stones should prove to be the main attraction for visitors, according to co-owner Carl Loeb.

"The word those who have seen them use is 'fantastic,' says Loeb.

To the naked and untrained eye, fluorescent rocks are indistinguishable from others. But placed under an ultra-violet light, they actually glow in the dark.

The bulk of the collection—willemite, hardistonite and werinerite,—were purchased from a private collector. All were gathered in Franklin, N.J.

Other rocks fluoresce, according to Loeb but none as bright as those found in Franklin.

The most valuable specimen in the cave is a chunk of wulfenite, the second largest specimen in the world. It was purchased in southern Mexico by Richard Sommers, the other partner. (Pocono Mineral has the largest piece as well, displayed outside).

Sommers also unearthed a six-ton pertrified log to be displayed for the first time this year. The log, which Sommers dug up in Arizona, is estimated to be 160 million years old.

Expensive charms of gold

flooding the market today a dealer protects both himself and his clients if he's an expert in the field.

Also, try to handle objects which you are fond of. Your enthusiasm will be transmitted to your customer, for one thing and in addition, you won't be too unhappy if the article doesn't sell. It can always go into your own collection!

Q. When were little gold dollars made in America and are they still available? I am looking for some for charms on a bracelet.

A. Coinage of the gold dollar in the United States was begun in 1849 and continued until 1889. Examples are still available at coin dealers although they command a high premium because they are so scarce. Consult your local coin-dealer and if there is none in your area, watch the newspaper for reports of meetings of numismatic societies where coin collectors congregate.

Q. I have inherited a number of European cookie-molds which are not only very useful, especially at Christmas time, but they're also charming decorations on my family-room walls. I search dilligently but rarely find any others in the shops. I am wondering why. I find everything else!

A. Cookie-molds, particularly old and finely-carved examples, are usually handed down from mother to daughter — as yours were — and their use becomes part of the family tradition. Their owners, as you well know, are loath to part with them. Occasionally examples turn up at estate sales, when the entire contents of houses are dispersed — including the kitchen implements. Visit the pre-sale exhibitions at auctions whenever possible and leave your name at every antiques shop you visit, telling them of your special interest. Something is bound to turn up someday!

Gulliver sets sail

STROUDSBURG — John Jacobi, an East Stroudsburg school teacher, recently announced that he will be organizing a Wind jammer Sailing Cruise in the Bahama Islands this summer.

Jacobi, who has organized such cruises for the past seven summers, noted that this summer's trip is scheduled for the week of July 29.

"This is a great opportunity for the person who is looking for a new, unusual, and exciting way to spend their vacation," Jacobi stated. "I call it a taste of adventure at a leisurely pace."

"Our group will fly from Philadelphia to Nassau, where we will board the 84 foot schooner yacht Gulliver," Jacobi noted.

"Although cruise members may help set sail, weigh auchor, or try a trick at the helm, if they wish, this is not a working cruise," Jacobi added.

Anyone wishing further information on the cruise should contact Jacobi at 421-6781, or PO Box 631, Stroudsburg.

Unique handicraft goods brighten Mt. Pocono home

MOUNT POCONO — A new entry on the antiquity scene has opened in Mount Pocono and surprises galore await the visitor.

Make it a "must " to visit the Potpourri Antiques and Boutique Shop at 102 Main Street. Once you've entered you'll know you are in a special place.

Marie and Ben Travisano formerly owned and operated a Boutique Shop in Newark, N.J. and have recently purchased a lovely old home in Mount Pocono turning the lower floor into a collectors dream.

See lovely "one of a kind" pieces of furniture, restored to their original beauty by Ben, to enhance the decor of any home or "one of a kind" glass, china, pictures, jewelry and many other items carefully selected by Marie for yourself or an extra special gift.

Potpourri features jewelry from the Art Deco Period (1920's and 1930's), which was famous for long necklaces made of plastics and other materials. Jewelry in the Art Nouveau Period (1895-1914) is also represented in the form of elaborate silver, gold or glass necklaces, bracelets and stick-pins.

The prices range from $15 and up for most of the older jewelry, but Art Nouveau stick-pins are going for only $6.

Mrs. Travisano explained they buy most of their handcrafted items from shops in New York or from area craftsmen.

Other items at Potpourri include Mexican wedding shirts, Spanish ceramics, gourmet untensils, a variety of spiced teas and organic grooming aids.

Marie and Ben Travisano also have a collection of painted prints by Dr. Wallace Nutting. Dr. Nutting was a New England minister, farmer, photographer and painter during the early 20th Century. His paintings portray the country surroundings of his native New England.

Potpourri is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Closed on Wednesdays.

Farm life for kids

would be a wonderful way for the students to get a tangible experience to go with their study of Colonial American History," said Kramer.

The children were busy at all sorts of tasks as Kramer spoke. Some were jumping from the barn loft into haystacks, peeling potatoes, carrying water from the well, making ice cream, feeding or trying to feed the numerous barnyard animals and poultry, and helping to bake bread in the farm's outdoor oven.

The costumed skill artists at the private museum operated by the Historical Farm Association, Inc. were not bothered at all by a busload of energetic fifth graders. They enjoyed the visitors.

While an employe supervised dough kneading, another instructed youngsters on how to cook stew over the old-fashioned open-fire hearth ("get to the bottom and give it a big stir").

Quiet Valley Farm hosts a number of school groups during the spring. The farm opens its one and one half-hour tour to the public on Sunday and will be open through the summer.

The museum hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on weekdays and 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Raceway ox roast

MOUNT POCONO — A Pocono style "Ox Roast," sponsored by the Schaefer 500 at Pocono Festival, will highlight the festivities for the Wednesday opening day at Pocono International Raceway.

"It really isn't an ox," stated a spokesman for the company that will prepare the feast, Goldens Grove of Springville, Pa., but rather an enormous steer.

Goldens Grove must begin to prepare their roast the day before it is to be served. It requires 18 to 28 hours to cook and the animal will weigh about 650 pounds.

Admission to Pocono International Raceway is free for opening day. Ribbon-cutting ceremonies are scheduled for 12 noon, with the ox roast picnic set to follow.

The picnic will be on a first-come-first-served basis, and free beer and soft drinks will also be served.

Raceway to feature exotic zoo

MOUNT POCONO — The First Annual Pocono State Fair to be held at the Pocono International Raceway July 20-29 featuring many well-known stars will also present the "Petting Zoo" that will be in the exhibit area of the fair.

It will be a Petting Zoo with over 60 tamed exotic animals, from all over the world, roaming free.

This is a show no child or animal lover should miss.

Cal Smith to perform

STROUDSBURG — There will be a country music entertainment special for all country music lovers at the Pocono Vacation Park on Shafer's School House Road in Stroudsburg.

Cal Smith and the Grand Ole Opry will be featured at 1:30 p.m. Sunday . . . rain or shine.

Carole Dosher who plays the part of nursemaid Agnes Gooch, whom Auntie Mame has successfully taught to love life, rehearses her role in the upcoming Pocono Playhouse hit "Mame."

'Mame' opens Playhouse

MOUNTAINHOME — That great big Broadway musical hit, "Mame," sets the smart pace for the 27th season of summer entertainment at Pocono Playhouse.

This is "Mame's" first visit to the Poconos, where for two weeks starting June 25, she and her cohorts will be kicking up their fun-loving heels to the rollicking and popular tunes of award-winning Jerry Herman.

Since early 1970, when national tours of "Mame" began, Anne Russell, who will be playing Auntie Mame, has been charming the U.S. as the lovable and wealthy playgirl of the 20s, who suddenly inherits a small nephew and goes through 18 years of funny and fantastic adventures in raising him to manhood.

Miss Russell became the darling of the resort area last summer when she made her Pocono debut in Rowena Stevens' touring production of "Hello, Dolly."

This season she comes direct to the Mountainhome theatre from a tour in which she has been starring with Eddie Bracken in "Never Too Late," to the cheers of Southern audiences.

Love at first sight is mutual between aunt and nephew Patrick when he arrives on the scene with his nurse-aid, Agnes Gooch, in the midst of one of Mame's glittering cocktail parties in her fashionable Manhattan apartment, and she goes right to work rearing him to appreciate the "banquet of life."

First things first: he is shortly taught how to mix a very dry Martini for the wits and celebrities who are her guests.

Mame's setback in the 1929 Crash, followed by her hilarious ineptitude in trying to make a living, is only temporary, thanks to a gallant Southern gentleman with a big plantation," Packerwood," the setting for Act One's rousing production number to the hit title song, "Mame," in which she is hailed for, among other things, teaching the hunting gentry a thing or two by bringing the fox back alive.

Miss Russell's large supporting cast includes 10-year-old Jeffrey Rea as young Patrick; Robert Lunny as the same apple of Mame's eye as a young man, Sandy Sprung as her hard-drinking "Bosom Buddy" (the role created on Broadway by Beatrice Arthur of "Maude" TV fame), Vera Charles; Randy Phillips plays Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside, Master of "Peckerwood" and Carole Doscher is Agnes Gooch, whom Mame teaches how to love life with a certain unexpected result.

This fast-moving jamboree is being directed by Jack Timmers. The dances are being staged by Jack Craig whose choreography is well known to Pocono regulars.

Under conductor Leslie Harnley's baton will also be great songs from the show like "My Best Girl," "If He Walked Into My Life" and "Open a New Window."

Tickets are available now at the Pocono Playhouse box office and at its agencies in Scranton (346-1666) at the Jermyn Motor Inn, and in Honesdale (253-1390) at Scureman's Pharmacy.

Playgoers in Allentown, Bethelhem, Easton and Phillipsburg can reserve tickets by making a toll-free call to ENterprise 1-0899.
